Program.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—(AP)—Holding close to a prearranged chart, President Roosevelt's 22-man allotment board gave approval in two hours today to a thick sheaf of work projects and recommended that he spend $1,091,802,200 to set them going.

The projects covered a wide range of types in hundreds of localities widely scattered over the country.

In only two instances did the advisory board veer from a course already put on paper by mimeograph machines. But there was no explanation of the official procedure employed by which the applications division of the $4,000,000,000 work-relief set-up was able to list so definitely in advance what projects the allotment board headed by Secretary Ickes would choose to recommend to Mr. Roosevelt.

Immediately after the White House session, Frank C. Walker, applications chief, read the following outline of projects approved from a mimeographed statement to which two yellow-sheeted long-hand additions were attached:

Bureau of Public Roads—$200,000,000 for highway, road and street construction; $200,000,000 for grade crossing elimination; and $100,000,000 to carry out previously incurred obligations.

The War Department Engineers—$102,186,500 for general projects; $10,000,000 for the Passamaquoddy (Maine) tide-harnessing power project; $25,000,000 for work on the Mississippi between the Missouri river and Minneapolis; $21,000,000 for work on the Missouri river below Sioux City.

Housing Program of the Public Work Administration—$249,800,000. Rural resettlement division—$100,000,000.

The state of Wisconsin—$100,000,000 for 140 projects with the provision.

Beer Sellers Turn Dry After Baptist Boycott

MEMPHIS, Tenn., May 16.—(AP)—North Main street restaurants "went dry" today.

A group of delegates to the Southern Baptist convention entered one cafe, noticed a "beer for sale" sign, and then left without ordering their meals.

Shortly most of the restaurants in the vicinity of the convention had removed their beer signs. One enterprising food dispenser substituted their little window advertisement:

"Baptists welcome—no intoxicants sold here."

SENATE APPROVES WAGNER MEASURE BY 63-TO-12 VOTE

Teeth-Pulling Amendments Rejected; Bill Outlaws Company Unions, Restates 7-A.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—(UP)—The Wagner labor disputes bill, designed to curb industrial strife by compelling employers to bargain collectively with their workers, was passed by the senate late today. The vote was 63 to 12.

The vote came after the senate had rejected an attempt by Senator Millard Tydings, democrat, Maryland, to write into the bill provisions which would have prevented organized labor unions from coercing workers belonging to other unions and made trade unions responsible for their own acts.

A similar measure is pending in the house. Although President Roosevelt has taken no public stand on the legislation, the failure of administration leaders in the senate to oppose it and statements by various labor leaders indicated the measure was acceptable to the chief executive.

Provisions of Bill.

As passed by the senate, the bill has these main provisions:

1. It writes into the law of the land the right of workers to bargain collectively with employers through representatives of their own choosing.
2. It creates a board of three, appointed by the president, to serve as

DUDLEY COWLES SHOOT'S BANDIT IN HOLDUP DUEL

Fires As Man Shoots
Three Times; Mrs.
Cowles Witnesses Shooting;
Bandit Near Death.

Firing into the flash of an unidentified man's pistol fire early this morning, Dudley R. Cowles, prominent Atlanta businessman and civic leader, shot and seriously wounded the man in what police termed a frustrated holdup attempt near the Cowles home on Andrews drive.

The man, on whose person was found papers bearing the name Claude Wilson, was in a precarious condition at Grady hospital at 2 o'clock this morning. Doctors there held little hope for his recovery. He had been shot in the left chest and right side.

Near the scene of the shooting, county police arrested a man who gave his name as Alek Jones, 18, of an Alexander street address, who according to police, said he had met the wounded man only a short time before the shooting and knew him as Claude Caraman. He said he did not know there was to be a holdup. He was held at Fulton tower.

Mr. Cowles told Fulton county police that near his home an automobile crowded his car to the curb. A man jumped out and stepping to the running board of his car, showed a pistol into his face. The bandits' companion, who remained in the car, urged him to "shoot the damn fool."

Cowles said he had a pistol on the seat beside him, and, fearing for his life, reached for it and fired two shots at the man. The latter fell and then, with his companion, ran into the woods. He later was found in the automobile by the police.

Cowles stated he did not recall seeing the man shooting at him, but Mrs. Cowles, who was seated in the rear of the automobile, said the man fired three shots. Three empty shells were found in the pistol which had fallen from the bandit's hand.

COTTON LOAN DATE EXTENDED TO 1936

Twelve-Cent Advances
Also Available to Growers
Until July.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—(AP)—The maturity date of the 12-cent-a-pound government loans to cotton producers today was extended by the Commodity Credit Corporation from July 31, 1935, to February 1, 1936.

In making the announcement, the AAA said that direct loans upon cotton eligible under the 12-cent loan plan will be available to producers until July 1, 1935.

The department said that as of May 10, cotton loans to producers totaled $268,868,886 on 4,406,787 bales of cotton. Of this amount, only $33,719,566 on 594,804 bales actually had been disbursed. The balance of the notes being held by banks or other lending agencies.

Extension of the maturity date of these loans means, the AAA said, "that producers who have obtained 12-cent cotton loans may make repayment, obtain release of their pledged cotton warehouse receipts, and secure the advance of any loan they wish between now and February 1, 1936."

"It also means that no cotton pledged as security got 12-cent loans will be available to producers until July 1, 1936."

Five New Air Marks Set By TWA Fliers

FLOYD BENNETT AIRPORT, N. Y., May 17.—(Friday)—Five new international records for land planes with load and nine new American records were set today as D. W. Tomlinson and Joseph Bartles ended a 3,000-kilometer closed circuit flight when their TWA Douglas transport plane flashed across the finish line here at 1:50:09 a. m. central standard time.

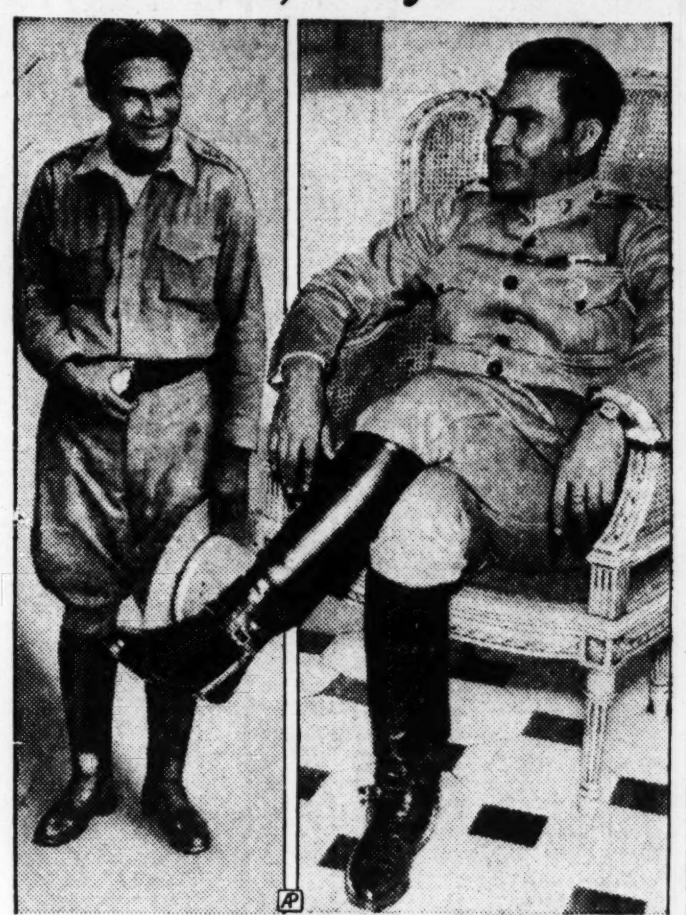

The average speed over the course was estimated at more than 168 miles per hour.

The five international records set were:

1. 2,000-kilometer distance with 1,000 kilogram payload, 174:29 minutes per hour. Old record 159 miles per hour.
2. 2,000 kilometers with 500 kilogram payload same speed. Old record none.
3. 5,000 kilometers with 1,000 kilogram payload 168:7 (unofficial). Old record none.
4. 5,000 kilometers with 500 kilogram payload, same speed. Old record none.
5. 5,000 kilometers, no payload, same speed. Old record 130 miles per hour.

Story Behind New Cuba Is Batista, Says McGill

Less than two years ago he was a sergeant in the Cuban army; today he is the supreme commander of the republic's armed forces. He is Colonel Fulgencio Batista, who rode into power on Machado's downfall in a daring coup assisted by a group of noncommissioned officers. He is shown here as he looked shortly before the coup and (right) as he is today.

HAVANA, Cuba, May 15.—(By Air Mail).—One comes to Cuba today and finds no bombing, no riots, no gunfire in the streets, no shots at the man. The latter held, Jefferson Caffery, who has earned the respect of all thinking Cubans and the respect of his own

PATMANITES FREE BONUS MEASURE

Roosevelt Flatly Promises
To Reject Bill; Test
Delay Is Promised.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—(AP)—The inflationary $2,200,000,000 Patman bonus bill, held captive since it was passed by the senate more than a week ago, was finally started on its way to the White House today to meet a veto which President Roosevelt flatly promised a few hours earlier.

With friends of the measure contending they had picked up strength in their drive to override the veto, the White House moved to counteract reports that some Roosevelt leaders thought it wise to pass the bill over the president's objections.

Stephen Early, a White House secretary, announced that President Roosevelt would "present as forceful an argument as he has" in vetoing the bill and said it was the chief executive's "earnest hope that congress will support the veto."

Despite the claims of the Patman forces that they had picked up strength, administration leaders in the senate said they knew of no changes in the lineup and maintained that the veto would be sustained. They have counted upon a minimum of 35 votes to uphold the president, or three more than necessary.

The inflationary bonus measure is

Georgia's Right To Secede Is Defended by Tom Linder

Vigorous defense of the state's Bulletin utterances that the state of Georgia had a right to secede from the Union government is contained in a communication addressed by Tom Linder, state commissioner of agriculture, to J. L. Harrison, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce of Donelsonville, Tennessee county, and furnished The Constitution.

In a series of questions and answers, Linder rushed to the defense of his contention and cited the fact that for the first time in the history of Georgia white voters were called upon to march to the polls side by side with negroes to vote in a democratic election on adoption of the Backhoe processing tax.

He also cited the Scottsboro case, holding that if carried to "its logical conclusion, a negro could not be convicted of an attack on a white woman except by negroes," and that means "racial equality."

"No southern white man could answer secession but one way under such circumstances," he asserted. He held that "no son or grandson of a Confederate veteran would hesitate to advocate secession under such conditions."

In addition, he cited the fertilizer code, striking at as a move to swell the profits of a fertilizer trust, "headed by the Chase National Bank of New York."

The processing tax on hogs, and

RUM SALE PLANS OF KEY, BOWDEN TO FACE COUNCIL

Mayor Will Demand Action on Municipal Store;
Councilman Seeks Liquor
Handling by Merchants.

City council Monday will be confronted with two plans for control of local liquor sales in the future as a result of the 2-to-1 majority Fulton and DeKalb counties gave repeal in the state-wide referendum Wednesday.

The two plans are:

1. Mayor Key, nationally known repealist, backed by Councilman Howard C. McCutcheon as floor leader, will demand action on a petition for a citywide referendum to empower Key to operate a series of liquor stores and divert all profits to the city treasury.
2. Alderman James E. Bowden, who, with other members of the fifth ward delegation in council, initiated the move to license the sales of beer, will ask council to set up a license for liquor sales in packages and allow any merchant who will pay the tax to sell "good liquor."

May 29 Election Sought.

McCutcheon will insist that the city referendum be set for May 29, if council declines to pass the proposed ordinance without submitting it to the people of Atlanta.

Bowden asserted last night that inasmuch as the people of Atlanta and Fulton county voted more than 2 to 1 for repeal, "I as a representative of the city intend to do everything possible to see that their wishes are carried out."

Bowden asserted he will ask City Attorney Jack C. Savage to prepare an ordinance along the lines of the beer licensing ordinance for submission to council Monday.

"I believe every store which will sell liquor should be permitted to do so," he asserted. "I propose that it all shall be sold in packages and that none of it shall be consumed on the premises. I also propose that each package shall bear a stamp issued by the city, attesting that it has been inspected and is pure."

"Ready" for Store.

Although the mayor declined to make a physical standard "second" to the margin by which the ancient dry law was retained on the state statute books, he asserted that he is "ready" to open the stores now, and "that it will drive the bootlegger out of Atlanta."

HOLCOMBE, ELLIS NAMED BY BOARD

2 Policemen Fired and 6
Others 'Physically Unfit,' Retired.

Elevating Captain A. J. Holcombe to the post as second assistant chief of police, and electing two new lieutenants, Lieutenant Neal Ellis to the vacant position as captain, the police committee last night fired two police officers and voted to retire half a dozen others because of physical disabilities.

The retirements were in line with a drive to bring the department up to a physical standard "second" to none in the country, and others are slated to follow because of the determination of the committee, headed by Councilman G. Dan Bridges, to weed out the physically unfit.

M. B. Petty and C. E. McCrary were elected as lieutenants to fill vacancies, and the committee deferred action in the selection of a successor to Lieutenant W. H. Andrews, who has applied for a pension, effective September 1. It was forecast last night that J. A. McKibben will be elected to fill Andrews' place when the vacancy occurs.

Chief of Police T. O. Sturdivant's nominations for all promotions were accepted by the committee by unanimous vote.

S. C. Williams and H. L. Turner, patrolmen, were fired from the department on Sturdivant's recommendation after being convicted of charges of conduct unbecoming officers.

Pensioners Named.

The following officers were ordered to take pensions, effective September 1:

- O. D. Evans, 31 years' service; J. H. Doyal, 28 years; S. C. Johnson, 28 years; L. Boyce, 28 years; J. D. Freeman, 27 years.

J. E. Wiley was ordered placed on light duty. He has been a member of the department for 20 years. W. H. Douglas was ordered to take his pension November 10, after the expiration of his 25 years of service.

All those ordered on pension were

Margin of Victory So Small Result May Yet Change

Wet Leaders Refuse To Concede Defeat Until Official Count Is Certified and Proclaimed

Out by Dry Vote of Late Reporting Precincts

BEER SALES LEGALIZED OVER STATE; WINES MADE IN GEORGIA APPROVED

Late Switch in Outcome Surprises Both Sides.
Some Dry Leaders Had Already Issued
Statements Deploing Result They Believed Settled.

Unofficial returns from every precinct in the state late last night gave the drys a margin of 44 votes over the repealists in Wednesday's referendum on repeal of the 27-year-old Georgia bone dry law. Minor corrections from half a dozen counties made during the late evening reduced the lead of 90 which the first complete unofficial tabulation had given the anti-repeal forces. There will probably be other corrections made when the official count is certified which leaves the issue in doubt until the total is certified to the governor by the secretary of state.

The count last night stood as follows:

For repeal, 81,945.

Against repeal, 81,989.

It was evident, when the narrowness of the margin was seen, that it will be necessary to await the result of the official tabulation before the outcome is definitely known. There is also the possibility recounts may be asked in some counties, though no move in this direction had been made yesterday.

Recounts, if asked, will be through repeal leaders in the different counties who will make their request to their own county authorities. Spence M. Grayson, leader of the repeal campaign, stated yesterday he did not expect to instigate any recount move and said that would be left entirely up to the local leaders in each county.

BUCKHEAD VOTERS PLANNING CONTEST

Misunderstanding of Hours Denied Them
Franchise, Citizens Say.

Asserting that they were denied the right to vote in the election Wednesday through a misunderstanding of voting hours, numerous citizens in the Buckhead district last night were preparing to contest the election there and to seek a new one on the question of prohibition repeal.

Affidavits were to be drawn up today by almost a hundred persons, repeal leaders said, in an effort to force the election to be held again.

William G. Hastings, secretary of the Georgia Association for Local Option, said more than 25 persons had reported to him yesterday that they were unable to cast their ballots for repeal Wednesday because the polls

Invest 10c a Month To Guard The Future of Those You Love

"Two farmers injured in accidents." That was a recent headline appearing in The Atlanta Constitution, and it illustrates a point you have seen stressed in this paper many times. Don't depend on court proceedings to protect your wife and children. After you are killed or maimed, the only thing that can help them is money—help when expenses are heaviest and they need aid most. The thing to do is to invest the small sum of 10 cents a month, or if you prefer $1 for twelve months in advance, for travel and pedestrian insurance as offered through The Atlanta Constitution. The insurance offered you through The Atlanta Constitution is issued by the North American Accident Insurance Company, of Chicago, Ill., which company has already paid Atlanta Constitution subscribers over $200,000. The insurance is offered to subscribers of the daily and Sunday Constitution and immediate dependent members of the subscriber's family between the ages of 15 and 60 on the one subscription going into the home at a small registration fee of 20 cents with application and 10 cents per month thereafter in addition to the subscription price, or $1 each per policy per year in advance to subscribers who live in Atlanta and Atlanta suburbs where we have carrier delivery. Out-of-town subscribers can have this insurance by paying $1 per policy per year in advance.

This insurance offered through The Atlanta Constitution provides for the payment of sums ranging downward from $10,000 for travel, $1,000 for auto and pedestrian deaths resulting from certain specified accidents, heavy sums for permanent injuries, and $10 weekly indemnity for total disability resulting from accidents set forth in the policy, which is at the rate of $43.33 per month. In sending application for insurance, the applicant must state name in full, give age and occupation, and if beneficiary is desired the full Christian name of beneficiary must be given and relationship of same to the insured. Do your duty! Protect yourself and family today. Tomorrow may be too late!

$400 Robbery.

BOSTON, May 16.—(AP)—Two thugs held up the up-town office of the Eastern Steamship Company and after forcing two employees and a customer to undress, escaped with nearly $400. The office is located near the corner of Tremont and Boylston streets, one of the busiest sections in the city.

CO-OPERATION URGED IN INTANGIBLES DRIVE

R. C. Mizell Calls on Citizens in Area To Make Returns Voluntarily.

R. C. Mizell, former president of the Atlanta and Georgia Taxpayers' League, yesterday urged all citizens in the Atlanta area to return their intangibles for taxation voluntarily and take advantage of the reasonable rate of assessment, agreed upon by the taxing authorities.

Mr. Mizell said that, while high rates of assessment were enforced, he had not advised property owners to return their property, but the present agreement does away with objectionable features of the law.

"As long as the authorities tried to impose the old unreasonable rates, I declined to advise those who came to the tax league office seeking advice to return their intangibles," Mr. Mizell said.

"Authorities now are attempting to temper a harsh law by reasonableness in administration. I am sure that the owners of intangibles will appreciate the attitude of the authorities and will recognize their obligation to the city and to their fellow taxpayers. No good citizen wishes to 'deadbeat' his fellows by receiving from the governmental services which the others pay for."

"Every honest citizen wishes to pay for what he gets. Since the rates have been reduced, intangibles should be returned."

Under the agreement reached by the taxing authorities of Fulton and DeKalb counties and the city of Atlanta, voluntary returns of intangibles will be received until May 31 at a reasonable rate of assessment.

This includes five cents on the dollar for cash; 15 per cent of the market value for taxable stocks and bonds; 25 per cent on first mortgages and 15 per cent on second mortgages.

Full co-operation with the property owners has been pledged. No questions about the date of acquiring the property will be asked, and no detailed list of holdings will be placed on the digest.

Immediately after May 31, drives will be launched to place all intangibles on the tax books at the full rate, plus penalties.

"The bacterin is a sub-culture of avian tubercle bacillus—tuberculosis carrying bacterin."

Dr. Maher said he discovered the bacterin while making a culture of non-acid-fast avian tubercle bacilli.

"One day I removed a flask of glycerol broth culture of this bacilli from the incubator and put it aside at room temperature for further study. A week later I examined it and to my surprise found the bacilli had disappeared and had been replaced by the bacterin I have named avian yeastoid," he said.

Dr. Maher said he drank several bottles of the bacterin and administered it to rabbits and guinea pigs, without ill effect before he administered the serum to patients.

Years' Suffering Ends.

"Asthma patients who had not been able to pass a single night in long years without jumping out of bed to struggle at a window for air," he said, "sleep soundly all night, refreshed in the morning, and by continuing nightly doses of the bacterin for a week they no longer are victims of asthma."

Reactions showed greatest when tuberculosis was complicated by bronchial asthma in Dr. Maher's initial experiments, leading him to restrict its use mostly to asthma cases.

He made no claims of positiveness in treating tuberculosis, St. Vitus dance or insanity, merely pointing out several cases in which the bacterin had proven successful. He introduced to the commission and attending physicians Miss Catherine Sweeney, a telephone operator, who, he said, was cured of tuberculosis through administration of A. Y.

MAHER OFFERS DOCTORS FORMULAE WITHOUT COST

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 16.—(UP)—Dr. Stephen J. Maher, who revealed to doctors today a new serum to cure most cases of asthma, said his formulae was available to any physician who wished to use it.

During experiments with treatment of tuberculosis with his so-called avian yeastoid, Dr. Maher said he had sent many bottles of the bacterin to doctors throughout the United States and in China, France, Great Britain, Algeria, Ceylon, Germany, Italy, Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia and South American countries. Each was sent four one-ounce vials, enough for four weeks treatment of one patient.

Dr. Maher said he refused an offer of $50,000 from a New York drug house official "who strongly urged me to sell the patent to his firm."

"I could use advantageously $50,000 in my laboratory work. But I have decided that the wisest way will be to tell the world about my composition, the method of preparing it and the results of using it."

Doctors wishing a copy of the formula, he said, can obtain it by communicating with him at his New Haven laboratory.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—(UP)—The President and Mrs. Roosevelt, staid heads uncovered, in a slow, drizzly rain today to receive the disabled soldiers and ex-soldiers of this city's service hospitals at their annual garden party.

Asthma Cure, 90 Per Cent Effective, Is Offered World Free of Charge

NORWICH, Conn., May 16.—(UP)—A possible cure for 90 per cent of asthma cases was given the medical world today by Stephen J. Maher, 75-year-old internationally-known scientist.

In addition, the bacterin has been used with moderate success in treatment of tuberculosis, dementia praecox and St. Vitus dance, Dr. Maher said, and may assume inestimable importance in medicine.

Dr. Maher, who has devoted 35 years to research and study of tuberculosis, discovered the bacterin, which he named avian yeastoid, by accident.

"No matter how old or how young the patient may be, no matter how many months or years he has had the disease, no matter how famous the medical authority may be who pronounced him incurable, I know that I can quickly cure more than 90 per cent of all cases of asthma simply by the oral administration of A. Y. bacterin," the aged scientist told members of the Connecticut Tuberculosis Commission, of which he is chairman.

Advisedly Emphatic.

"In future years it may be considered a more valuable therapeutic agent in asylums for the insane than in sanatoria for tuberculosis."

"This is a strong statement, and purposely so, because its scientific and clinical importance demands immediate attention by the medical authorities of the world."

The bacterin is a sub-culture of avian tubercle bacillus—tuberculosis carrying bacterin.

Dr. Maher said he discovered the bacterin while making a culture of non-acid-fast avian tubercle bacilli.

BARKER, AIDS' FATE IN HANDS OF JURY

Five Weeks' Bremer Trial
Ends as Federal Jurors
Are Excused.

ST. PAUL, May 16.—(AP)—A gangster's fate and the future of six associates rested with a federal jury tonight as Arthur (Doc) Barker and his co-defendants awaited a verdict which might send them to prison cells for terms up to life on conspiracy charges in the Edward G. Bremer kidnapping.

Culminating a five-week trial, Federal Judge M. M. Joyce, in his hour-long charge to the nine men and three women jurors, said evidence of proof might be circumstantial. The jury was excused at 3 p. m. to begin deliberation on the guilt or innocence of the.

The jury was locked up for the night at 5 p. m.

Joyce said a verdict would not be received at night because authorities deemed it dangerous to transport the prisoners from the county jail to the courtroom after dark.

Barker, who, the government contends, was co-leader with Alvin Karpis, of the Barker-Karpis mob, in the $200,000 kidnapping of Bremer, 37-year-old bank president, January 17, 1934.

Harold Alderton, in whose home at Bensenville, Ill., Bremer was imprisoned for 21 days.

John J. (Boss) McLaughlin, 68-year-old former minor political power in Chicago, accused of being the chief in the "peddling" of the ransom money.

Philip Delaney, restaurant and tavern proprietor, and close friend of McLaughlin for 25 years.

William E. Vidler, "bookie," James J. Wilson, 27-year-old former Northwestern University student, all of Chicago, and Oliver Berg, 41, of the Illinois state prison, named as "money changers."

Byron Bolton and Elmer Farmer, two other defendants who participated in the actual abduction, pleaded guilty, and will be sentenced after the jury reports on the other cases.

N. J. Standard Shows
Best Year Since 1929

NEW YORK, May 16.—(AP)—Walter C. Teague, president of the two-billion dollar Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, received a salary of $125,000 last year.

This information was disclosed today by the company's financial statement for 1934, which showed consolidated net profit for the year of $45,618,000, equal to $1.76 per share of capital stock.

In the matter of profits it was the company's best year since 1929. In 1933 the earnings amounted to $25,084,310, or 97 cents a share.

The total compensation paid the president and nine directors in 1934 was $806,000. This amounted to nine one-hundredths of 1 per cent of the operating charges of the company for the year as shown on the consolidated income account.

TWO ALABAMA CITIES ACCEPT POWER BIDS

FLORENCE, Ala., May 16.—(AP)—City authorities of Sheffield and Tusculum today accepted low bids for construction of power distribution systems in the two cities, subject to PWA approval, PWA funds to be used in the construction.

Officials of the two cities said they expect construction to begin within 30 days.

Right of the PWA to lend the two cities funds for construction of the distribution systems was attacked yesterday in a plea for an injunction filed by the Alabama Power Company in Colbert county circuit court. Hearing on the plea has been set for next Monday.

The power company alleged that such loans are not within the scope and authority of the recovery act. Sheffield, in advertising for bids, had eliminated any reference to the Tennessee Valley Authority and proposed to buy current from the power company.

The boy is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Sazama. His father is an athletic instructor at the naval academy.

Approximately 100 residents of west Annapolis joined the parents in the search which began last night when the boy failed to return home from the West Annapolis school.

Mails Don't Even Wait For Postmaster General

Even the postmaster-general has to respect the United States mails. Last night a heavy-set, bald man walked up to the main postoffice here and said:

"I want to mail this package. It is a birthday present for my daughter and must make the mails tonight."

"I am sorry," said the clerk, "but the only way you can make the air mail to New York is to go to the airport, our truck just left."

"O. K. I'll drive out," said the bald man.

As he left, too late the clerk recognized him, it was Postmaster General James A. Farley.

'Lawrence of Arabia'
Is Reported Weaker

WOOL, Dorsetshire, Eng., May 16.—(AP)—Slight hope was held tonight for the recovery of Colonel T. E. Lawrence, Britain's romantic "Lawrence of Arabia."

Physicians reported he was gradually growing weaker as a result of injuries he received Monday night in a motorcycle collision.

"I'm afraid the chances for his recovery are very slender," said his brother.

Lawrence, leader of an Arab revolt during the World War, remained unconscious this afternoon, 72 hours after the accident in which he was hurled 130 feet. Because of his condition his brother came to the hospital today.

The ousted included five former cabinet ministers and two army generals.

It was officially explained that President Oscar Carmona's government desired full control under the corporate system embodied in the new Portuguese constitution.

THREE MEALS A DAY

KITCHEN TESTED RECIPES
by Sally Saver

THE COOK "GETS HER MAN" WITH BANANAS AND BACON.

Add bananas and bacon to your list of luncheon recipes if you would get your man—and keep him, too! The flavor of the banana rolled in a strip of bacon is making every man in the land an Oliver Twist because—

"he wants some more!" The recipe is given elsewhere on the page.

Bananas are "all-weather" friends. There is always a plentiful supply of this fruit in the markets.

"Fair weather" friends are presumably those who desert you in crisis. Bananas never do that; they are friendly in flavor, texture, taste and digestibility, as test of following recipes will convince you:

Bananas and Bacon.
Six bananas, peeled, 1-4 pound bacon. Roll half lengths of bananas in strips of bacon. Secure with toothpick. Broil or bake in a hot oven (450 degrees Fahrenheit) about 15 minutes, or until bananas are tender and bacon is crisp. Baste at least once during making. Whole bananas may be used wrapped in bacon and cooked in the same way. Serves six.

Marshmallow-Banana Apples.
One and one-half cups sugar, 1-4 cup water, 2 apples, 1 or 2 bananas, 1 tablespoon butter, 6 marshmallows. Make a syrup by boiling sugar and water together three minutes. Core apples and pare tops. Fill cavities with thinly sliced bananas and arrange in a baking pan. Pour the syrup over them and bake about half an hour, until tender, in a moderate oven, 350 degrees Fahrenheit. When done, dot each apple with a little butter and baste well with remaining syrup; then place marshmallows on each and put them back into the oven to brown.

Lamb Chops With Bananas and Mushrooms.
For an excellent combination grill using lamb chops, perhaps you'll want to try this:

Broil 4 lamb chops on one side. Place on an oiled plank or fireproof platter with the browned side down. On one end arrange 3 tomatoes cut in thick slices and dipped in melted butter and seasoned flour. In the middle place 2 bananas cut in halves and dipped in melted butter and seasoned flour. Place in between mushrooms, likewise coated with melted butter and return to the broiler until the chops are done and the tomatoes and bananas nicely browned.

Banana Meat Loaf.
Two pounds ground beef, 4 slices bacon, 1 cup celery (finely diced), 2 eggs (slightly beaten), 1-2 cups cracker crumbs, 3 bananas (finely diced), 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 1-4 cup apple sauce, cayenne, salt and pepper.

Mix ground beef, celery and 1 cup cracker crumbs. Season with salt and pepper and moisten with slightly beaten egg. Pack half of mixture into a greased loaf pan. Cream or dice bananas very fine. Add lemon juice, apple sauce and 1-2 cup cracker crumbs. Season with salt, pepper and cayenne. Pack top of meat in loaf pan.

Over this pack the remaining half of meat. Lay strips of bacon across the top and bake in a moderate oven (350 to 350 degrees Fahrenheit) until done.

Banana Bundles.
Six bananas, rich pastry, 1-2 cup sugar, 1 teaspoon cinnamon.

Peel and cut the bananas in half cross-wise. Roll in the sugar and cinnamon which have been thoroughly mixed. Place on a square of pie crust about 1-2 inch thick and roll, completely enclosing the banana. Bake in a hot oven (425 degrees Fahrenheit) for 15 to 20 minutes. Serve hot with whipped cream.

Banana Sherbet.
Two cups banana pulp (5 to 6 bananas), 6 tablespoons lemon juice, 1-2 cup sugar, 1-4 cup white corn syrup, 1-8 teaspoon salt, 1 egg white, 2 cups milk.

Mash bananas and mix pulp thoroughly with lemon juice. Add sugar, corn syrup, salt and egg white beaten stiff but not dry. Add this mixture slowly to milk, stirring constantly. Place in tray of automatic refrigerator and freeze. Stir when mixture resembles a thick mush, which should be at the end of about one hour when full recipe is made. Stir again just before mixture is frozen hard, which should be in about another hour. Approximate time for freezing—3 hours.

Banana Fritters.
Six bananas, powdered sugar, fritter batter.

Peel bananas and cut in halves, first lengthwise, then cross-wise. Sprinkle with powdered sugar. Dip in the fritter batter and fry in deep hot fat 300-375 degrees Fahrenheit until brown. Turn fritters frequently while cooking.

Ala. Court Reverses
Scottsboro Sentences

MONTGOMERY, Ala., May 16.—(AP)—The Alabama supreme court today reversed and remanded for new trials the cases of Haywood Patterson and Clarence Norris, negro Scottsboro defendants, in carrying out the mandate of the United States supreme court, which set aside their sentences on the grounds negroes were systematically excluded from the petit and grand juries in the case.

We have one less specimen to work with now than we had. While the box of bats was on my desk, one of them managed to escape and flittered about the office. It eventually found an open window and left me for the bright sunshine, which seemed to confuse the poor beast no end, for he flittered aimlessly about for several minutes before locating a church steeple near by, where he took refuge from the light.

Certainly the flying movements of this specimen were far less certain than those of bats that course through the darkening sky every evening. I should imagine that the intensity of light would be the sole cause of this.

Members of the National Fire Prevention Association

concluded the business portion of their annual convention at the Biltmore hotel yesterday, and today will make up a motor caravan to visit Fort Benning and the "Little White House" at Warm Springs.

More than 700 members of the association will join the legions to Fort Benning, where they will be guests at luncheon at the Officers' Club, and where a regimental review will be staged for their entertainment. On the return trip the group will visit Warm Springs and inspect President Roosevelt's home there. The motor trip will mark the formal ending of the conclave.

Committee meetings featured yesterday's session at the convention, the highlight being an address by Dr. David J. Price, of the bureau of chemistry and soils of the Department of Agriculture, on "Dust Explosions." Dr. Price addressed the committee on dust explosion hazards, of which he is chairman.

The speaker declared that a startling increase in the loss of property and life resulting from dust explosions in southern factories handling agricultural products had occurred in 1934. Nearly half of the $2,475,000 in such losses reported for last year occurred in the south, Dr. Price said. Research work is being carried on by the department of agriculture to perfect methods of reducing the dust explosion losses.

R. B. Harper, of Chicago, addressed the association on "Fire Prevention in the Gas Industry," telling how constant care has enabled the gas industry to bring about material reduction in fire losses.

LAKE LURE IS DRAGGED FOR BODY OF ATLANTAN

Search Continues for Volney C. Harmon and Woman Companion.

Efforts to locate the body of Volney C. Harmon, 34, prominent Atlanta business executive who was drowned Tuesday night in Lake Lure, N. C., continued yesterday and last night as workers recovered the body of one of Mr. Harmon's two companions from the water after dragging the lake nearly 48 hours.

Two boys in a rowboat discovered the body of Johnnie Jones, 31-year-old Charlotte, N. C., businessman, yesterday afternoon but the search for Mr. Harmon and Miss Virginia Savage, of Charlotte, the third member of the ill-fated party, was unavailing.

The Atlanta man, who was district sales manager of the bus division of the General Motors Truck Company, and the two from Charlotte were drowned Tuesday night when their motorboat suddenly capsized and threw them into the water. The fourth member of the party, Miss Opal Barrow, of Charlotte, swam to shore safely, but, lost in the dark, wandered in the woods six hours before locating aid. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Barrow, of 1462 Lucile avenue, S. W., and formerly resided here.

Robert A. Camp, Atlanta official of the General Motors Truck Company, said last night that his company is aiding in the work of dragging Lake Lure. The body of Mr. Jones was found 50 yards from shore and searchers were concentrating their work on the northern end of the lake, some distance from the place the boat overturned. Mr. Harmon was known to be a good swimmer and it was thought he possibly swam some distance toward shore after the boat capsized.

The Atlanta resident at the 1050 Apartments on Ponce de Leon avenue and was a well known figure in Atlanta's social circles. He was a native of Grand Rapids, Mich.

Miss Barrow suffered from exhaustion and exposure but was reported recovering yesterday.

Byrd Reaches Home, Disbands Expedition

BOSTON, May 16.—(AP)—Admiral Richard Evelyn Byrd came home today with his crew of 110 men, 67 dogs, two airplanes and other equipment and officially disbanded his second Antarctic expedition.

More than 2,000 persons gave him a tumultuous welcome as the supply ship Jacob Ruppert and the expedition ship Bear of Oakland were warped into docks at the Charleston navy yard at noon.

Sirens along the waterfront blared madly as the two ships approached the dock and as they were warped into their piers a salute of 13 guns was fired. The sled dogs, chained on upper decks of the Ruppert, joined in a shrill chorus of howls.

Governor James M. Curley accompanied Mrs. Byrd as she greeted the explorer when he descended the gangplank followed by his crew, all of whom wore white bandages signifying their membership in the expedition.

"SAGE OF POTATO HILL" WILL UNDERGO KNIFE

BALTIMORE, May 16.—(AP)—Ed W. Howe, Atchison (Kan.) editor, famous as the "Sage of Potato Hill," arrived here today and prepared to enter the Johns Hopkins hospital for an operation he hopes will restore his eyesight which began to fail a year ago.

One of the first to call upon the noted Kansan after he had gone to his hotel was H. L. Mencken, the Baltimore critic and author. The two have been friends for many years.

Howe's physician at the hospital is Dr. Alan C. Wood, director of the Wilmer Eye Clinic, who will remove cataracts from the eye of the journalist, now past 80 years old.

UNWISE LEADERS

The unreasonable attitude adopted by leaders of the United Textile Workers' Union in Washington to reject the recent unanimous report of the cotton textile work assignment board named by President Roosevelt is neither good sportsmanship nor calculated to forward the cause of organized labor in the textile industry.

The board, composed of a representative of the mills, another of the union employees and a neutral chairman, found that there was no basis to the charge that the mills through the installation of the so-called "stretch-out" system had violated the provisions of the textile code or increased the amount of work to be done by individual operatives.

The report pointed out that better equipment and improved methods have brought increased production per operative, but that with this has come shorter hours, better wages and higher standards of living.

In direct answer to the "stretch-out" charge—in other words, that each operative is being called on to perform heavier duties—the report cites that the improvement in machinery and the assignment to others of duties which formerly consumed at least half the time of an operative has reduced "the time required per operative per machine and enables handling of more machines with no more work or effort."

The report cites the folly of discouraging "the use of improved machinery, better methods and scientific management, which if prohibited or in any way limited would retard further progress of industry and labor."

There can be no reasonable dissent to this position, but Francis J. Gorman, vice president of the textile union and who was largely responsible for the calling of the abortive textile strike of last year, and whose representatives, it is said, incited the recent strike in the Callaway mills, greets the report with the statement that it is "misleading, false in its assumptions and stamped with the employer point of view, and I am satisfied the United Textile Workers' Union executive board will repudiate it."

Such an attitude toward decisions based on incontrovertible facts and approved by their own representatives, as was the case in this instance, retards the cause of organized labor.

The same attitude has been adopted toward the decision of the Textile Labor Board in which the Callaway mills at LaGrange were found not to have violated the provision of the textile code, as charged by the outside influences responsible for calling the recent strike in these mills.

This strike was precipitated by leaders of the textile union in Washington and would not have taken place had the decision been left up to the operatives of the Callaway mills. Employers and employees in no other mill in the south have had more friendly relations than in these mills, as attested by the fact that when the founder, the late Fuller Callaway, died the employees joined in the erection of a magnificent monument to his memory.

The policies inaugurated by him have been continued and intensified by his two sons, Cason and Fuller. In this ideal situation came, like a thunderbolt from a clear sky, a deliberately engineered strike, based upon alleged infraction of the textile code by the mills. Operatives who did not want to leave their work were molested to such an extent the state militia was called to protect them from injury and in their inalienable right to work if they so chose.

After lengthy hearings by the Textile Labor Board of evidence on both sides, and the sending of representatives to the mills, the charges were found to be unfounded, and the Callaway mills were completely exonerated.

Instead of accepting the decision in good grace the labor leader in Washington who fomented the strike now attacks the government as being unfriendly and announces that the decision will be appealed, thus illustrating the fact that labor is the chief loser from unwise leadership.

Many of the employees who left their work have had their positions filled and are now among the unemployed. The mills did not lose a single day of production, the places of the strikers being filled from those who were unemployed and wanted work.

No administration was ever more friendly to labor than the one headed by President Roosevelt, and there is no possible excuse for the unreasonable attitude adopted by labor leaders in Washington toward the judgment—arrived at by federal boards on which labor was represented with capital—that there has been no violation of the textile code by the mills.

A LONELY SENTINEL

In answering a set of questions based on his recent fulminations about secession, in the Market Bulletin, Commissioner of Agriculture Linder puts himself deeper in the hole than ever.

The questions, propounded by J. L. Haralson, secretary of the Donaldsonville and Seminole Chamber of Commerce, and Mr. Linder's answers to them, appear in full in the news columns of this issue.

Mr. Linder still bitterly protests that "for the first time" negroes and whites voted together in the election on the Bankhead bill. Surely, the commissioner knows better than that. Negroes have been voting in every regular election held in the south for more than a half century.

Large numbers cast votes in the repeal referendum of this week, their participation in support of the existing dry laws being practically unanimous as urged by leading negro ministers—but the commissioner continues his attack on the administration on the ground that it is responsible for voting by negroes.

The negro farmer, both as land owner and tenant, plays a large part in southern agriculture and it was proper for him, both as a farmer and a citizen, to participate in the referendum on the Bankhead bill. Not only were his own interests at stake, but those of his white neighbors as well.

Mr. Linder continues to wave the secession banner on the ground that the supreme court "rendered an opinion which says, in effect, that a negro cannot be convicted of a crime against a white woman unless negroes are in the jury box to try him."

The supreme court did nothing of the kind. What it ruled was that negroes cannot be excluded, because of their race, from the jury panels, which is an entirely different thing from holding that a negro cannot be tried unless a member of his race is on the trial jury.

The whole south has accepted the judgment of the court, but Mr. Linder, who, like "the boy who stood on the burning deck from whence all but him had fled," remains as the lone sentinel of secession.

The state supreme courts of Alabama and Mississippi have instructed the jury commissioners of these two states that eligible negroes must be included in the jury panels or else all convictions will be voided in advance.

Any Georgia schoolboy could tell the commissioner that membership on a jury panel does not assure a place on a trial jury, since any prospective juror can be struck by either the state or the defense.

In justice to Mr. Linder, and in accordance with his request to Mr. Haralson, The Constitution publishes his statement "in full."

He is fortunate that it is no longer than it is, for the more he writes the deeper he becomes involved.

Unfortunately, medical annals fail to show any private enterprise of the kind for comparison with publicly operated quintuplets.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN.

An Argument That Fails.

One of the chief arguments in justification of Germany's official anti-Semitism, as formulated by men like Dr. Alfred Rosenberg, Count zu Reventlow and others, is collapsing in the light of modern Biblical research now carried on in Palestine by independent German and Dutch Protestant scholars. The Rosenberg argument in brief comes down to this—that the ancient Hebrews in their occupation of the land of Canaan, 3,000 years ago treated the Aryan inhabitants they found in the land as inhuman cruelty and ferocity and that the harshness of the law which was meted out to the Jews of modern times by the Nazi state is therefore but just and deserved retaliation for the bloody terrorism which is said to have been practiced in the dawn of history by a primitive tribe of nomadic Bedouins upon Edomites, Jebusites, Moabites, etc.

The Discovery.

The long and short of the new sensational discovery is this: The Hebrews did not introduce themselves into the Holy Land by force of arms, but practiced a form of infiltration which is still followed by modern Bedouins. They did not exterminate the natives in a succession of ghastly holocausts. The Hebrews fraternized with the Canaanites, who, with the exception of the Philistines, were nearly all kindred Semitic or Hamitic tribes. They mixed with them, intermarried with them and even adopted themselves to the religious cults of the local Canaanites.

Not until three or four hundred years after Joshua, when the promise of the Hebrew God, Jehovah, to the upper hand and began to influence the religious policy of the kings of Judah and Israel, who sought to create a homogeneous national Hebrew state, was the first determined struggle waged for the exclusive worship of the One True God. Up to that time all the old gods were open, worshipped in Palestine, and it means that even if the Hebrews did not worship them, that the old inhabitants still predominated.

Refutation.

These latter day discoveries, which are corroborated by the Biblical narrative, show conclusively that the original inhabitants of Canaan, far from having been exterminated by Joshua and his lieutenants, which would have been a physical impossibility in addition, were very much alive in the fifth century B. C. At any rate their descendants were, so that the revolting stories of the extermination of the Canaanites, which are the work of the Israelite sword, are mere invention.

But why then were they written down? you may ask. Why did the chroniclers of Deuteronomy, for instance, place their own people and their God, whom they loved with such passionate zeal, in such an unfavorable light in the eyes of history? The answer is these chroniclers, who wrote about the sixth century B. C. sought to establish a tradition against idol-worshipping. They invented stories to show that God had decreed things, that idol-worshipping had slipped in as an abuse, a pious fraud.

CALCIUM METABOLISM.

The ordinary diet of American living in towns is probably most often deficient in calcium than in any other chemical element, according to Henry C. Sherman, Ph.D., Sc. D., and W. L. Bragg, Ph.D., D. Sc., of the University of California, Berkeley. Calcium is the ordinary diet of all classes of American people whether urban or rural, rich or poor, is likely to be deficient in vitamins.

The best food sources of calcium (and phosphorus which is nearly always associated with it), are dairy products, greens and fresh vegetables. These are also sources of the calcium and other mineral elements may be removed in the process. Just for instance, crude brown sugar contains 200 times as much calcium as refined white sugar does. And the original sugar cane, beet or maple sap contains vitamins which are destroyed or removed in the process of manufacture.

Vitamins are essential for the normal metabolism of calcium, its proper assimilation and use in the body. Not alone in the prevention and cure of rickets by vitamin D, but in scores of health disturbances which, at present, are seldom recognized as deficiency diseases.

Sunshine, particularly the ultraviolet rays of sunshine or from an artificial source, impart the vitamin D to a substance to a substance which carries it through the circulation. So exposure of the naked skin to sunlight or to the rays of an ultraviolet lamp, promotes better calcium metabolism.

Aside from rickets, there are many borderline or vague states of below normal condition, loss of bone strength and lack of "resistance" due to faulty calcium metabolism.

Individuals subject to such ailments as (arthritis), giant heels (osteoporosis), osteomyelitis, hay fever, asthma, migraine, may obtain much relief by taking 10 grains of calcium lactate (or calcium gluconate), three times daily, in water sweetened and with fruit juice, after meals, for a course of two or three months twice in the year, and by taking fish liver oil or other carrier of vitamin D to supplement the diet and by exposing the skin to ultraviolet to promote calcium utilization in the body.

Calcium enters into the formation of muscles, nerves and the cells or tissues of many organs, as well as bones and teeth. It is essential for coagulation of blood. When calcium content of the blood is low, tetany, a kind of prolonged spasm of muscles of the limbs occurs. Probably a calcium deficiency is concerned in many spasmodic or spastic conditions. An intravenous injection of calcium chloride or calcium lactate is the best remedy for severe colic as that of gallstones or lead colic.

These are just a few of the significant facts of nutrition. We have many more in stock, but it is just as well not to tell you laymen too much.

News Behind the News

By Paul Mallon

NOVELTY WASHINGTON, May 16.—Those farmers who came here to applaud the AAA actually were farmers. At least most of them were. A private check-up indicates that possibly 200 of the 4,500 were county agents indirectly on the government payroll. The rest were mostly well-to-do soil superintendents, southern planters and large wheat farmers.

Of course, their march was in part a Pullman trek. Many slept in lower berths. Some stopped at one of the swankiest hotels in Washington, which is quite expensive. Also some decided to remain over a few days and see the sights, including the zoo in Rock Creek park and one in Congress.

But, all in all, they managed to convince the capital that they were really sons of the soil. As such they were novelists. Most of the farmers seen around here lately are two or three times removed from the hoe—farm politicians and agitators, who, like many labor leaders, discovered early in life that it is easier to lead than to labor.

ENCOURAGEMENT Stories have been going around that the farm demonstration was organized by the AAA to offset the bad publicity which the farm program has been receiving in spots. If you will investigate disinterestedly, you will find the facts are these:

The AAA did not directly organize the move, but certain officials in the AAA unofficially encouraged it, and helped to make it a success. Officially, they arranged for the hall, but the farmers themselves took up a collection to pay for it. They lent clerical help from the AAA free. Also the programs appear to have been printed by the government, but that is not entirely clear yet.

Some AAA officials were consulted by the leaders of the movement in advance. Most of these officials apparently wrote letters approving the idea, but at least one did not. He advised against it because he did not believe it would turn out as well as it did from an administration standpoint.

ORGANIZATION It has already been published that C. H. Day, a Texas corn-hog and cotton beneficiary, was the revealing details of how the movement was organized have not been set forth. It was built mainly upon the county control committee, in each county and the township committees in most townships. These committees are made up of farmers for purposes of the AAA program. County agents usually are secretaries of the control committee. The AAA may quibble with you if you say the county agents are paid by the government, but it is fair to say part of their remuneration comes from the federal government.

In one typical instance, an AAA extension officer wrote to a farm leader in his home district suggesting a meeting of farmers be called for that district. When the meeting was held, the idea of a march to Washington then was broached. It took well. A contribution was taken up to pay the expense of a delegate.

Some delegates paid their own way because they could afford it. The regular farm lobbying organizations (like the American Farm Bureau Federation) had nothing to do with it in any way.

PROMOTION The AAA crowd is propagandizing its program more effectively now, regardless of the farm march. For instance, a Kansas farmer came in to see Administrator Chester Davis a few weeks ago.

He told Davis exactly what the program had accomplished for him personally. Davis was so interested that he suggested the farmer go around and tell other farmers about his experience. The farmer was put on the AAA payroll for that purpose and is now out making speeches.

RETRENCHMENT Without saying anything about it, the New Deal seems to have scrapped the idea of spending relief money for the manufacture of goods. President Roosevelt himself is supposed to have ordered discontinuance of the practice.

Under the old relief set-up, money was spent to make mattresses in Ohio, shoes in some other section, etc. Some manufacturers complained bitterly about the competition.

A new project recently was put forth by Congressman Connelly, of Massachusetts, to spend $25,000,000 of relief money for making shoes. He was turned down on the ground that the government is not doing that sort of thing any more.

FIGHT The next issue of Labor, a forceful newspaper issued by the railroad brotherhoods, will contain a charge that Supreme Court Justice Roberts was the J. P. Morgan preferred.

The railroad brotherhood boys have dug up evidence from a record of the senate banking committee indicating that Mr. Roberts was on a Morgan list for 100 shares of Allegheny Corporation common stock. This was long before Mr. Roberts became a supreme court justice and while he was an attorney in Philadelphia.

The reason the brotherhoods are reviving the matter is because Mr. Roberts led the majority of the court in the recent opinion invalidating their pension law.

POPULARITY The secret of the popularity of the farm program with many farmers may be found in some of the AAA statistics. There are 3,000,000 farmers subscribing to AAA contracts. Payments to the cotton farmers amounted to $24,415,979 to the end of March. The AAA expects to pay about $100,000,000 to a million cotton farmers this year, as compared with $116,000,000 paid to them last year.

Old Women Pull Carts in Europe, But Not While Mules Stand Idle

By Robert Quillen

A new school of thought, now very influential in the nation, holds that all customs and institutions established before the year 1933 are obsolete and unfit for use.

Various branches of it hold that all competition is wicked and unnecessary; that profit is an evil; that home is not so much a place as a sociological problem, and that woman's place is not in it.

The first two propositions are answered by common knowledge and common sense.

Right or wrong, men will compete so long as two of them desire the same thing. If they do not compete for the same order or the same dollar, they will compete for the same job, the same crust of bread, or the favor of Stalin.

And, right or wrong, profit is the only bribe that works. No animal will exert itself except to get something it wants. Russians, who think they scorn profit, suffer in hope of the great profit to come when their plan works.

The third proposition is to be discussed in fear and trembling. Let us begin by admitting that woman is man's equal in many particulars and far superior in others, and therefore is entitled to every right and privilege he enjoys.

But what of it? Equality doesn't prove that she should hold a job. Is it work that she desires? Evidently not, for she has done the household chores and the spade and hoe work for ages, while man did the hunting and fishing. And more recently she has had work enough and to spare at home, yet found little pleasure in it.

It isn't mere work that she craves. She desires a job down town, as man does, in order to be among people, to feel that she is a part of things, and to gain the independence that can be won only by earning her living.

Well, that is her right. If her help was needed, as it has been in the past and is now in Russia, she would deserve a medal.

But jobs grow scarcer year by year. The new idea is to give people more leisure. Why should she work when there is not work enough to go round?

Every statesman knows that the problem of supplying jobs for men could be solved in a day if women were forbidden to work as in Italy. Are there nine million jobless men in Italy who are not working because they are not allowed to work? The matter isn't discussed by politicians, because it is dynamite. Women vote, and they work cheaper than men.

You say that some must work to live. Well, men now live without working. Would it cost more to support jobless women?

Since jobs are scarce, and we must choose between giving work to men and giving work to women, the sensible thing is to follow the plan of nature.

Somebody must bear and rear children. Nature gave the job to women, unless they decide to let our race die out.

Man can't do woman's work. Some day we shall realize how silly it is to let him loaf while woman does his work.

FILLINGIM IS NAMED TRAFFIC CLUB HEAD

W. J. Fillingim, general traffic agent for the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, has been named president of the Atlanta Traffic Club.

The club was organized by the resignation of John R. Cooke. Mr. Fillingim was appointed by the board of directors of the club. He also is a director of the Associated Traffic Clubs of America.

Mr. Cooke, who was commercial agent of the Seaboard Air Line railroad, resigned his office in the Traffic club to enter service in the fourth corps area of the United States army.

Inventor Shot in Chest When Invention Works

The invention of C. M. Robertson, 47, of 208 Tudor street, S. W., worked yesterday morning and as a result he was taken to Grady hospital with a bullet wound, intended for chicken thieves, in his chest.

His condition was reported as serious.

When thieves broke into Mr. Robertson's chicken house about three weeks ago, stealing nine of his prize hens, he decided to invent a thief trap which consisted of a means of firing a pistol aimed at the door when the door was opened.

The invention worked when Robertson opened the door, forgetting about the trap while hunting a missing pet dog. He was rushed to Grady hospital by neighbors.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Huey's NEW YORK, May 16.—Power. In Huey Long's orations to the citizenry over the air and to the press gallery in the senate he consistently avoids the subject of his military dictatorship in Louisiana. Should he mention the matter he would make news of it again—let alone it is no longer news and an accomplished fact.

Huey proclaimed martial law in Baton Rouge, the state capital, last January and instituted a press censorship which forbids the local papers to criticize him or any of his acts. This was done when a small and loosely organized group of citizens was goaded into a weak rebellion under timid leadership. These people had just been disfranchised by Huey's legislature through an act which permitted Huey to appoint a sufficient number of political deputies to outnumber their local officials in the government of the city and county. They were still permitted to go through the motions of voting, but their votes were without effect.

In protest against this nullification of their political rights a few citizens attempted to organize a secret revolt. When the time came to go into action, however, they discovered they had taken into their membership a number of spies belonging to Huey's Chicks, or secret police force, and that their plans and proceedings all had been reported to the dictator.

No Personal Appearance.

Huey called the militia to Baton Rouge, mounted a machine gun on the entrance to the hotel where he was quartered to protect his own person and sent the troops out to scatter the rebels. Although Huey spoke contemptuously of the rebels, he did not make a personal appearance with the troops in the field. The revolt was scattered in a few minutes and the situation subsided.

While he was at it Huey issued his order of censorship. This is a sensitive matter to him because he prefers to have the thought that he stands ready to answer criticism.

A few weeks before he had censured the Reveille, the college daily of Louisiana State University, declaring that it was "the worst student or professional paper that ever dared say a word against Huey Long. This put him in hot water, so he denied it; but, nevertheless, he did fire seven students of the Journalism department, who had transferred to the University of Missouri.

Censorship Order. The military order of censorship over the local newspapers of Baton Rouge has been in effect ever since January.

It reads as follows: "For publication, either by newspapers, handbill, pamphlet or otherwise, reflecting in any way the state or its officers or tending to influence the public mind against the state or its officers will not be permitted."

Huey should be elected president-dictator in 1936 or 1940, according to his announced candidacy, the same method enlarged to national scope would permit him to use the United States congress to pass laws giving him power to appoint political deputies wherever he thought it necessary to outvote the elected local officials.

Chicago or Boston, Cleveland, San Francisco or Atlanta could be made one with Baton Rouge, and the Baton Rouge order of censorship could be used as a model for other orders to suppress protest or criticism of the dictator.

If General Douglas MacArthur, for example, should refuse to obey orders and attempt to preserve the old form of American government Huey might try him before a packed court-martial and have him shot by a firing squad of United States soldiers against the wall of Thomas Jefferson's old home. If General Pershing should decide that life was not worth living in America under a dictator and attempt to win back something of that which he thought he was fighting for when he was in France he might be shot, too.

European Two Greek generals were executed by the royalists two weeks ago for resisting the current attempt to restore the monarchy, and although, to be sure, this is not Greece, neither is Huey's form of government American, but European.

Huey speaks of hanging people who state his officers or tending to influence the public mind against the state or its officers as when he said recently in Des Moines that he would hang Mr. Wallace, the secretary of agriculture. He might have been joking then, but the idea was characteristic of him and his sense of humor might take a realistic turn if he were elected president-dictator of the United States.

Of course he would need to have a certain type of congress in order to obtain such powers, but that is the type of legislature which he now has in Louisiana.

In Louisiana Huey gave to three of his friends a concession to drill oil in an oil reserve belonging to the state. As president, by the same process, he might give his friends the right to drill in "Baton Rouge." These are the points which Huey has never touched upon in the course of his orations about the louse in Daniel Boone's eyebrow and the income of $5,000 a year which every loafing and ne'er-do-well is promised for future delivery as the price of a vote for him.

Thomas Moore Good Subject For Gonzalez' Brush and Pen

THOMAS WALTER MOORE—"He's possessor of two identities . . . will admit without any ado that he has grave faults. . . . In his own manner he likes to sway the multitudes . . . trots out reams of poetic quotations from bards who are standard, and some that are not. . . . He's a pretty good papa," writes Gonzalez.

By MORO GONZALEZ. Noted Mexican Caricaturist. Everybody in Atlanta has heard of Collins district as "Tom"—to all his friends in Atlanta he is known as "Walter."

His stature in this city is nothing to sneeze at, either. He is a possessor of two identities. . . . I hear tell he is known to all his friends in Collins district as "Tom"—to all his friends in Atlanta he is known as "Walter."

Take a look at the profile. . . . Kindly chap—eh, what? . . . As a matter of fact he has a generosity of nature and is a very good fellow. . . . Human because he will admit without any ado that he has grave faults. . . . Walter observes the exaggerated lines of the sketch and says, "That likeness will attest to the fact that I have a goodly number of flaws."

Moore is active as a lay leader of the Methodist church . . . member of the Fulton county board of education . . . an ardent baseball fan. . . . There have been five generations of Moores out there in Collins district since 1848.

If the "Moores" has not suggested by now that the name is Irish—step in sometime when he's making a speech, that is, in his own manner, he likes to sway the multitudes.

Hear him once. . . . He reflects his Irish ancestry by his nimble wit. . . . He'll surprise you by an astounding facility to quote. . . . He trots out reams of poetic quotations from bards who are standard and some that are not. . . . He's a pretty good papa."

C. C. MUSE ORIGINATOR OF N. B. F. STORE CHAIN

Well-Known Young Businessman Has Spent Years in Grocery Business.

In the organization of the National Brands Food stores, Charles C. Muse, well-known young businessman, who has spent many years in the grocery and merchandising business, has evolved one of the most comprehensive co-operative buying plans so far outlined by any similar organization.

Mr. Mure originated the plan of this practical yet gigantic system after years of study and work in merchandising lines. He studied similar organization all over the country. In fact, he was organized some time back several similar systems, but he had failed to find just the ideal organization for which he was striving. He was—and is—a great believer in organization. He studied every similar system in existence, and while he learned that there was good in all of them, he also learned that none of them had the best in several systems, and adding new and attractive features not included in any of them, he would hit upon the ideal and most perfect

That is exactly what Mr. Muse has done in the organization of the National Brands Food Stores.

The originator knows he is right. He has discussed his newest plan with scores of grocery merchants, manufacturers and businessmen. They have not only admitted the correctness of his plan, but they have admired it—and as better proof, hundreds of grocery and meat merchants have begun to participate in it.

Mr. Muse is constantly receiving letters and inquiries in regard to his system—many from grocery merchants and scores from manufacturers all over the United States.

"I saw no reason," said Mr. Muse, "why a definite and attractive plan could not be worked out to handle in an exclusive way nationally-known products—such products as are nationally advertised and are known and called for by the housewife. I knew that if we could create a buying power, naturally the manufacturers would be interested, and it follows that the food buyer would be benefitted. That is the great success of our system—great buying power at lowest prices and the savings passed along to the consumer.

"Of course, the jobber as a distributor of food products is absolutely necessary," continued Mr. Mues. "Through him we get economical distribution of our car load buying. Our jobbers—those whom the group members will select in each division—will be large, experienced and well-rated jobbers. They will be prepared to handle large quantities of merchandise—scores of car loads—much to the advantage of the National Brands Food Stores. They being already mechanically equipped and in position to economically handle vast quantities of food supplies."

Merchandise Guarded By N. B. Food Stores

It takes years of education and vast sums of money to enlighten the public as to the contents of a can. A tin can with a beautiful label sometimes contains food that just passes government inspection but a manufacturer who is proud of his product conducts an educational campaign in the newspapers and magazines telling the public of the excellent qualities of the canned food he has to offer. This firm most zealously guard the high qualities of its merchandise. You can always depend upon getting the finest food sold as long as you ask and demand known products.

National Brands Food Stores is recognized by many firms as the first organization to publicly announce it will not feature unknown products but will advertise, display and feature nationally known foods at lowest prices. Stores in this growing group find it much cheaper over a period of time to sell known and wanted products, rather than merchandise of inferior quality. Every dollar spent in worthwhile and effective advertising lowers sales cost, so National Brands Food Stores find it much to their advantage and to that of their customers to sell Brands you Know and Like.

New Deal Called 'Autocratic' By Rome Man at Cotton Meet

By RANDOLPH FORT,
Associated Press Staff Writer.

SEA ISLAND, Ga., May 16.—(AP)—Termining the New Deal "radical" and "autocratic," Barry Wright, Rome, Ga., attorney, today made a vigorous attack on policies of the national administration at the 35th annual meeting of the Cotton Manufacturers' Association of Georgia.

Wright's address followed one by George N. Peek, adviser on foreign trade to President Roosevelt, who defended the cotton processing tax and said any inequity in the manner of applying it should be "corrected immediately."

Labor Criticized.

After criticizing the American Federation of Labor for its "selfishness" and for "its utter indifference to any rights of the public as a whole," Wright said Section 71A of the National Recovery Act was written by the federation "in defiance of the constitution."

The various decisions of the labor boards, he said, have been "radical and far-reaching."

"The labor boards," he continued, "have apparently surrounded the union with a sanctity hitherto reserved for Deity itself and no employer must take the name of the union in vain."

"Every man knows that the new order of things has produced a topsy-turvy land. Old thoughts, old beliefs, old ideals have been challenged. . . . We have been hypnotized into the belief that the way to create wealth is to destroy it; the way to distribute wealth is to limit production and increase its cost."

Wright said three fundamentals of constitutional government have been sacrificed through "these fantastic follies." He listed the changes as: vast increase in power of the executive; vast increase in power of the executive; vast increase in power of the executive.

He said recognition of the latter would be only a step toward "a truly American foreign trade policy" and added:

"All present government organizations dealing with foreign trade should be tied together and be under unified direction."

GAINESVILLE, Ga., May 16.—In a special election held Wednesday along with the prohibition referendum, three members to compose a new board of county commissioners of Hall county were elected. They were Glenn McConnell, Fred O'Kelley and Boyd Hollis.

The new board takes office immediately.

Governor Makes Brief Reference To New Deal in Speech at Augusta

AUGUSTA, Ga., May 16.—(AP)—Restraining himself "from making a speech," Governor Eugene Talmadge today made only brief and veiled references to the New Deal administration as he brought official state greetings to Augusta on Georgia Day of the bicentennial celebration in an address delivered to a capacity crowd at the Exchange Club luncheon in Hotel Richmond.

Following his address, the governor participated in the third and final bicentennial parade, riding in a barouche drawn by two white horses. With him were Adjutant General Lindsey V. Camp and Colonel C. Wesley Kilbrew, of the official staff, and Mayor Richard E. Allen Jr.

Early this evening he was entertained at dinner at Heidelberg Inn by Mayor Allen and later left to make connections with a New York-bound train for a series of addresses in the east.

In his hotel room before the luncheon at which he spoke, Talmadge said he would not touch on the "national situation," but during his speech he said "Georgia occupies the unique position of being the first state to call the federal government's hand for trespassing state rights."

He referred, he said, to the period when Andrew Jackson was president of the United States and John Marshall, chief justice of the United States, issued a majority opinion of the supreme court against the state.

Governor Talmadge, of Georgia, he said, defied the supreme court order, and "a lot of people were expecting Andrew Jackson to tear Georgia apart. Instead, Jackson merely said, 'John Marshall has made his decision. Now let him enforce it.'"

In another of his statements indirectly aimed at New Deal policies, the governor repeated his slogan that "the best government is the cheapest," and added:

"If Georgia is right in cutting taxes and keeping down governmental costs, then it will furnish a torch to lead the nation along the road to rock-bottom recovery."

In another part of his address concerning governmental costs, he ridiculed those legislators who "snead mouths" trying to balance budgets.

"Some people," he continued, "say it's a lot of work to balance a budget, but I never could believe that. I could balance three budgets while riding down the elevator of any building in Augusta."

There is only one way to do it: Cut down your expenses to what you have got. It's not right to do it any other way. Officers are just trustees of the people to spend what the people give them.

"We must return to the old plain system of running our state, or cities, our counties and our nation, and that system is spending just what you have and no more."

DRY VICTORIES BY 44-VOTE COUNT

Result of Repeal Ballot May Be Changed by Official Total.

repealists and their foes ran almost a dead heat race for the last few counties.

The secretary of state, John Wilson, is required under the law to certify the official count to the governor within three days, when the governor will declare the result and issue proclamations announcing it.

If repeal had carried the state as a whole would still have been dry. The issue submitted to the people by the legislature was whether or not local option should be adopted by Georgia. If repeal had won, each county would then have been permitted, if it desired, to hold a local election on whether or not liquor should be sold within its borders. Strict regulations were then thrown around the sale and it was believed, if these regulations were strict, that the promiscuous distribution of liquor that now exists under the bootleg regime.

Beer Becomes Legal.

The beer referendum did not include the county option clause. Beer thus becomes a legal beverage in Georgia as quickly as the governor proclaims the result of the election. The state will exact a tax of $1.25 per barrel against beer and the revenue, it is provided in the bill, is to be devoted to free school books for the public schools.

The wine bill levies no tax and is intended as a benefit to agriculture in the state. It permits the sale of wine provided it is manufactured in the state from Georgia products. There is a local option clause which permits counties to desire to bar wine. It is a tax free, subject only to such restrictions as the county or city may impose as to location and method of conducting the sales.

Early yesterday dry leaders were many of them, convinced their cause had lost. Several prominent churchmen issued statements deploring the outcome and declaring the prohibition forces would continue the fight to retain the state bone dry laws.

McBrayer Thanks Workers.

The Rev. H. E. McBrayer, pastor of the Lakewood Heights Methodist church, who has been a leader in the fight for repeal, issued a brief statement in which he thanked everyone in Georgia who had rendered service in the interest of repeal and said the official returns must be awaited before the result is finally known.

Spence Grayson, executive director of the Georgia League for Local Option, leader in the campaign for repeal, said he did not concede defeat until the official returns have been certified by the secretary of state. His statement follows:

"On behalf of the Georgia Association for Local Option, I wish to extend to the thousands of loyal and patriotic Georgians who courageously voted for the control and regulation of the existing liquor traffic, our sincere and heartfelt appreciation. These Georgians have, we believe, performed a real service for Georgia's future progress."

"We are grateful to those unselfish friends who actively waged our campaign in every county.

"I am particularly happy and proud of our own home county of Chatham, which gave to our cause the largest majority of any county in the state, and which was largely responsible for our splendid victory."

"I do not concede defeat until the official returns have been certified by the secretary of state. I have every confidence that his official return will be accurate."

At Buckhead operated on daylight saving time, while they understood it was to open and close on central standard time.

If those people will sign affidavits we will seek a new election," Hastings said.

He was joined in his fight by Fred Sorrow, Atlanta magazine publisher, and Reuben Garland, Atlanta lawyer.

Sorrow said he went to the Buckhead poll and was told the ballot box could not be opened for another hour. He returned in the afternoon and the box was closed.

Hastings issued an appeal for all persons who were unable to vote because of the confusion in time to communicate with him at the Ansley hotel. He asserted that the Buckhead poll should have operated on central standard time. If 80 or 90 persons make affidavits, he said he would appeal the election in Fulton county and would demand another.

Sorrow declared he knew of 250 voters in the Buckhead district who went to the poll and failed to cast ballots because of the time confusion. Attorneys Garland and others said last night they would begin investigation of the situation today.

SPANISH FLYER AT INI ON FLIGHT TO MEXICO

INI, Spanish West Africa, May 16. (AP)—Juan Ignacio Pombo, a young Spanish flyer off on a non-stop dash across the south Atlantic from Spain to his sweetheart in Mexico City, paused here tonight, forced down by sandstorms sweeping out of the scorching Sahara desert.

The 21-year-old youth in his powerful plane, the Santander, reached his tiny Spanish colony on the west coast of Africa at 6:20 p. m. after a hazardous, bumpy flight from Azadir, Morocco. He left Seville, Spain, shortly after dawn.

On Dawson, Sans Phone or Wire Depended Result of Repeal Vote

For three hours yesterday afternoon attention of all Georgia was centered upon Dawson county, the only county in the state which had not reported its vote on the repeal election.

Until the Dawson returns were in, the result was in doubt, for the total for the state showed only a couple of hundred difference between wets and dries.

There isn't a telephone or a telegraph in Dawson county and the only way to reach Dawsonville, the county seat, is by automobile.

With every other precinct in the state counted, the election stood 205 majority for the dries. Dawson, in the last general election, cast 625 ballots. An unofficial report showed that the county voted about three to one. There was a chance that on this one county alone might hinge the result for the entire state.

Georgia's reputation for its production and the Associated Press were told to drive as fast as possible to Dawsonville and call the official vote from the Dawson telegraph.

Automobiles set out for the north Georgia mountain city from Gainesville, Dahlonega, Cumming. In Atlanta, in newspaper offices, around

CHURCH GROUP DENIES SUPPORT OF M'BRAYER

A resolution adopted by the board of stewards of the Lakewood Heights Methodist church supporting the stand taken by the Rev. H. E. McBrayer, pastor of the church, does not represent the sentiments of a majority of the church, according to a statement issued yesterday by 15 members of the church, who identified themselves as belonging to the official board.

The resolution, made public Tuesday, was presented by Dr. S. L. Baldwin, chairman of the resolutions committee. Thirteen members of the board of stewards were present at the meeting at which the resolution was presented, and 12 of the members voted in favor of it, according to Dr. Baldwin.

The denial yesterday was signed by Edwin S. Kemp, H. F. Watts, C. E. Sams, Bill Pierce, J. F. Jordan, Mrs. C. E. Sams, W. B. Hardy, R. C. Watts, J. L. Harrison, O. S. Wafford, Mrs. J. L. Harrison, S. O. Skinner, R. B. McConnell, H. G. Cooley and Ernest Watts.

The denial was as follows: "We, the members of the Lakewood Heights Methodist church's official board, deeply deplore the statement as issued Tuesday over the signatures of L. W. Smith, chairman; D. P. 'Phoebe' Grayson, secretary; and Baldwin, chairman of the resolutions committee, as expressing the sentiments of majority of the official board."

"This was an absurd misrepresentation of the truth, unauthorized and unsupported as contained in the above statement, and we deeply regret that our friends and associates have been misled as to our stand on this question."

Answering the charge that the resolution did not represent the opinion of a majority of the board of stewards, Dr. Baldwin declared last night that only eight of the 15 signers to the denial statement are members of the church.

"There are 20 members of the board of stewards of Lakewood Heights Methodist church," Dr. Baldwin said. "Thirteen of them were present at the meeting at which the resolution endorsing the Rev. McBrayer was passed, and all except one of those present supported the resolution."

"Our resolution was approved by a majority of the board of stewards, and as such will stand."

Ellis Barrett Slated For Pro Tem. Position

Ellis B. Barrett, thirteenth ward alderman, will be elected provisional mayor pro tem, by council Monday to succeed J. Sid Tiller, third ward, who will resign, it was forecast last night.

Alderman I. Gloor-Hailey, ninth ward, who had been a contender, announced he would not allow his name to be presented, but would nominate Barrett. The pair are personal and political friends.

Alderman Frank H. Reynolds, who had been mentioned as a prospective candidate for the post, said he would not offer.

The entire field, who will be left open to Barrett, who, if the general council in council followed next year, will be the last man to serve before the council membership and ward reduction voted by the general assembly becomes effective in 1937. It is the council's plan to elect the provisional mayor pro tem to the post of mayor pro tem, and it is anticipated that Barrett will serve in that capacity next year.

Press Bureau Set For Works Program

WASHINGTON, May 16. (AP)—Treading softly because of recent criticism of administration "propaganda," the New Deal set out today to establish the most elaborate and intricate New Deal publicity unit that this capital has yet seen.

The bureau will administer the complex of the $4,000,000,000 work program. Instructions have gone forth from the office of the director, Frank C. Walker, of the National Emergency Council, and one of the head men of the work program, to use available administration publicity personnel as far as possible because of the contentions—published and spoken—that the New Deal had employed a hundred or so newspapermen for press agent purposes.

Centrally located on the first floor of a downtown business building, the work program bureau is to have its private telephone system to contact the 60-odd agencies involved in the work relief set-up.

AL SMITH ADVISES PARTIES ON PLANKS

NEW YORK, May 16. (AP)—Former Governor Alfred E. Smith, in his second book, "The Citizen and His Government," to be published tomorrow, advocates that the platform committees of the major political parties convene before the national conventions.

Under his proposal, the delegates from the various states would each nominate a member of the resolutions or platform committee from the membership of their state committee and "these delegates would get together well in advance of the actual convention in order to express to each other their desires in the way of a party platform."

FLA. SENATE PASSES LIQUOR CONTROL BILL

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., May 16. (UP)—A liquor-control measure, providing for sale in wet counties by the drink in eating establishments or by packages and contemplating state, county and city revenue from tax on contents was rushed through the senate to passage today.

Only five negative votes were cast, when at the end of an hour's debate, a roll call was ordered.

S. Senator Beall succeeded in pressing through an amendment prohibiting the Sunday sale of liquor. Senators Savin and McKenna won inclusion of a clause prohibiting liquor sales within 200 feet of a school or church.

ALA. SENATE ACCEPTS

MONTGOMERY, Ala., May 16. (AP)—By a vote of 8 to 2 today, a revision of laws committee of the Alabama senate approved an American League substitute for the State anti-sedition bill, aimed at curbing communism and giving authorities more power in dealing with radical activities.

S. C. HOUSE SUSTAINS
GUBERNATORIAL VETO

COLUMBIA, S. C., May 16. (AP)—The house enabled Governor Olin D. Johnston to realize a campaign promise today by sustaining his veto of a salary bill for Ben M. Sawyer, chief highway commissioner.

An affirmative vote of 60 to 51 for overriding the highway department veto fell short of the two-thirds majority necessary to take effect.

RUM SALE PLANS OF KEY, BOWDEN TO FACE COUNCIL

lanta even if the remainder of the state keeps them.

The petition already has 1,861 signatures on it, 11 more than are required under the law to force an election to initiate legislation in the city, and McCutcheon and Key propose to put the matter squarely up to city council.

Every Ward Voted.

Every ward and every precinct in Atlanta voted in the state repeal referendum for repeal, and Key and McCutcheon are convinced that the expression will be "considered seriously" by council in its action in sending so important a matter to the people or in failing to do so.

In pointing to the 5,000 majority by which Fulton county voted for repeal, they asserted that virtually the entire majority given came from city precincts.

"The vote of Atlantians in the state referendum was a direct and unambiguous mandate from the people of council to pass this ordinance now without submitting it to the people."

Key said: "There should be no equivocation, no hedging or side-stepping in this matter. It should be settled and settled without a lot of oratory."

"Financing Underworld."

"Atlantians are tired of furnishing money to finance the war of the underworld on society, and they are tired of allowing 100,000 gallons of alcohol to be sold monthly in Atlanta without paying a single cent of taxes, or without any other regulation."

"Failure to open the liquor stores and divert the profits into the city treasury, will mean that these conditions will continue and that the liquor business will operate as it has in the past, unregulated and untaxed—an intolerable condition."

"Fulton county also is in favor of control of liquor sales. The liquor store will admit that, at the same time place much-needed funds at the disposal of the local government, thus enabling us to reduce the heavy taxes levied against those who are struggling under the burden of governmental cost."

"I said before the state referendum was held that I would open the store if the people of Atlanta voted for me to do so, or if the council specifically instructed me to do it. I reiterate that statement now. I am convinced that is what they want."

He has contended consistently that this liquor business is a matter for self-determination of local government subdivisions, and I am still of that opinion. It is up to the people of Atlanta to handle this situation as they see fit and proper."

Fulton and DeKalb counties voted more than two to one for repeal in Wednesday's state-wide referendum, according to official figures released yesterday following completion.

A total of 12,822 repeal votes were cast in the two counties, while 6,335 voted their votes against it.

Beer and wine also were voted by the two counties by large majorities.

The official Fulton count was: For repeal, 9,919; against, 4,431. For beer, 10,191; against, 2,905. For wine, 10,063; against, 4,164. In DeKalb the following official result was announced: For repeal, 2,903; against, 1,324. For beer, 3,003; against, 1,728. For wine, 2,954; against, 1,654.

Salary Raise Delayed.

Although Chief Holcombe will be detailed immediately, he will not begin to draw the chief's salary until Assistant Chief C. P. Connolly, whose pension was granted by the pension board yesterday, becomes effective, June 1. The other changes among the superior officers also become effective immediately, but the salaries must await the actual vacancy.

The committee voted to place quiet and hospital signs around St. Joseph infirmary on the request of Aldermen L. Glor Hayley. It also instructed Chief Sturdivant to see that the signs are obeyed in the interest of the comfort of patients at the institution.

An ordinance to abolish the motorcycle squad, because of the riding hazard to members of the department was held in abeyance pending the move to obtain additional automobiles for use of police officers. The measure was referred to the committee after it had been offered in council by Aldermen Barrett, Gilliam, Carpenter and Ball.

National Dignitaries Attend Last Rites for Major Cohen

National figures who attended funeral services for Major John S. Cohen yesterday. Left is Postmaster-General James A. Farley and on the right is United States Senator Richard B. Russell Jr. Between them is Assistant Postmaster-General Harlee Branch. The chapel at Patterson's was crowded with thousands of persons prominent in city, state and national affairs.

Final tribute to Major John S. Cohen, president and editor of the Atlanta Journal, was paid yesterday afternoon by thousands of persons prominent in city, state and national affairs.

The services, conducted by Dr. Richard Orme Flinn and Dr. W. W. Moninger, were held at the Spring Hill chapel of H. M. Patterson & Son, and interment was in West View cemetery.

Postmaster-General James A. Farley, Senator Richard B. Russell Jr., Assistant Secretary of the Treasury L. W. Robert, and Assistant Postmaster-General Harlee Branch headed a delegation of Washington dignitaries who formed an honorary escort at the rites for the former United States senator, who was national democratic committee man from Georgia at the time of his death.

Other escorts were formed by members of the Atlanta Consistory of Scott-to vote on the Bankhead law. I am not shutting my eyes to the fact that a negro has been appointed an assistant attorney-general by the president. I am merely recognizing the fact that President Roosevelt, two weeks ago, appointed a black negro from North Carolina, named Armond Scott, as judge of the municipal court of the District of Columbia.

Q. If it came to show-down in racial equality would you head a movement for secession in the south?

A. That question answers itself. No southern white man could answer it but one way.

Q. Are you encouraging the farmers to secede from the New Deal?

A. Under the NRA, there was formed what was called a fertilizer code. This was nothing more or less than the old guano trust come back with government backing.

Under this code, a price was set to the farmers on fertilizer unreasonably high, to swell the profits in the pockets of the international fertilizer trust headed by the Chase National bank, of New York.

The farmers of Georgia stuck together sufficiently for us to break that trust and thereby secede from that code and trust. The processing tax in hogs collects numerous sums out of the hog growers of Georgia. I myself, paid $53.44 for the privilege of killing my own hogs on my own farm and selling a part of the meat. Every cent of this money goes to the farmers of the west. I advocate secession from this processing tax.

There is a processing tax on every gallon of syrup made in Georgia. The farmers who have made syrup, and especially those who made syrup for their money crop, what kind of price they received for syrup last winter.

I notice in the paper today where the sugar trust of Hawaii received a check from Washington for $6,000,000 for their part of this tax of the cane and syrup-raising farmers of the south.

I think we ought to secede from Hawaii and quit paying it $6,000,000 of our money.

a "supreme court of labor" over industrial disputes.

3. It outlaws company-dominated unions.

4. It specifies that employers must bargain with representatives of the majority of their workers.

5. In cases where there is doubt about the representatives of the majority the board is authorized to order and supervise plant elections to make this determination.

Far-Reaching Step.
The measure constitutes the most far-reaching step taken by the government in regard to relations between the employer and the employee. It was fought vigorously by business and industry. Organized labor threw its massed influence behind the proposal.

Representatives of business and industry took the position that in failing to make the trade unions responsible for their own acts, the bill places the employer at the mercy of organized labor and of racketeering unions which the American Federation of Labor could not control.

The principle of majority rule, they insisted, would strip the minority of the workers of their freedom by forcing them to join a strike of the majority regardless of their own wishes.

Labor leaders, in turn, insisted that Section 7-A, written into the National Industrial Recovery Act to safeguard the rights of the workers, has broken down and is ineffective. They quoted statements from leading New Dealers to substantiate this argument.

Backed by Green.

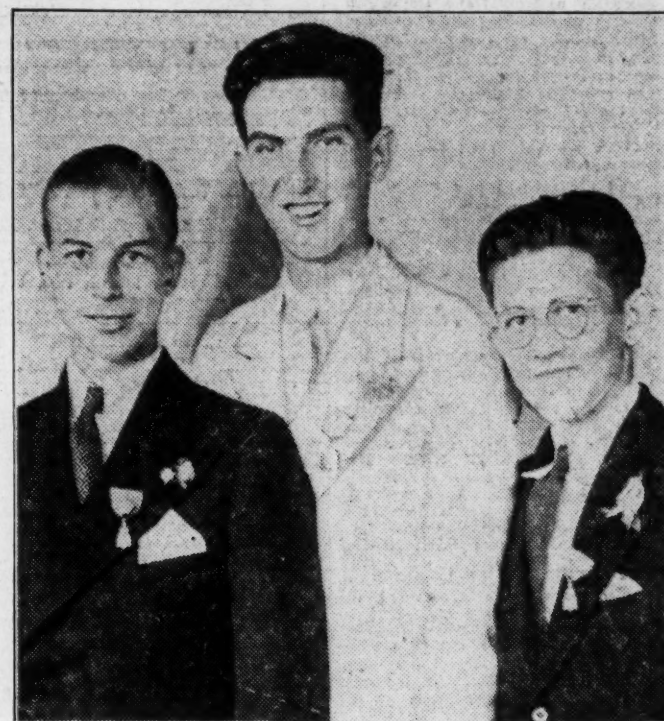

President William Green, of the American Federation of Labor, warned that unless the disputes bill was passed, unionists would be unable to control restless workers and that strikes would occur throughout the nation.

The measure provides the federation's nationwide organization drive with a powerful impetus. Labor leaders predict federation unions will greatly augment their membership by enlisting workers who heretofore have joined company unions, fearing to join outside unions lest they lose their jobs.

These workers would be protected by laws if the Wagner bill finally is enacted.

Senate action on the bill came after less than two days of debate and after little opposition from either republicans or democrats. The only amendment offered, other than those offered by the committee, was one by Senator Tydings. It sought to prevent outside unions from "intimidating or coercthe alleged payment by southern farmers of $8,000,000 in syrup processing taxes to Hawaii as their part of the cane tax.

LINDER DEFENDS RIGHT TO SECEDE

He favored "secession" from the hog and cane processing taxes.

Letter From Haralson.

Haralson wrote Linder as follows: "Many people here in southwest Georgia and especially Seminole county are loath to believe that you made the statement that you favored Georgia seceding from the Union or that you uttered words to that effect. Many of your friends join me in taking this method of asking you direct if it is true. Did you make that statement or a statement similar? If you did make such statement have you violated your oath of office? You swore that you would support the constitution of the state of Georgia and that of the United States, if you did or you morally or legally entitled to remain commission of agriculture of Georgia? Your friends in this section of the state are embarrassed and unless they are convinced otherwise they will no longer support you."

Questions and Answers.

In Mr. Haralson's letter to the commissioner he responded a series of questions, requesting an answer on each. To this the commissioner replied with the statement that the entire document must be "used in full or not at all." It is given in full herewith.

The questions as propounded by Mr. Haralson, with the commissioner's reply to each, follows:

Q. When you made the suggestion in the Market Bulletin of April 25 that Georgia still had the right to secede, did you refer to the secession of Georgia from the Union or the secession of farmers from the policies of the New Deal?

A. If anyone will read my article entitled "Three Political Platforms in 1932—Which One Are We Following?"—I think it will be clear what I had reference to when I said, "We still have the right to secede."

In closing that article, I made reference to the fact that for the first time the white people of this state were called upon to march to the polls, side by side with the negroes, to vote in a democratic election on the Bankhead bill.

I further called attention to the decision of the supreme court in the Scottsboro case, requiring negroes to be put in the jury boxes, and I wound up by saying, "No question is ever settled until it is settled right. We still have the right to secede."

I think that clearly carries to the mind of any thinking person the idea that should conditions become extreme enough to demand it—for instance, should it come to the question of submitting to racial equality, we still have the right to secede.

I do not believe there is any courageous white man in Georgia who is the son, grandson, great-grandson of a Confederate soldier, who would resent this statement. I invite my critics to print the entire article in which it was used.

Q. Were you drawing an inference that the national administration is fostering a racial equality movement?

A. I am not inferring anything. I am merely recognizing the fact that the supreme court of the United States rendered an opinion, which says, in effect, that a negro cannot be convicted of a crime against a white woman unless negroes are in the jury box to try him. Under the same line of reasoning, it would be necessary to have a negro judge to try the case. In fact, following the line of reasoning to its logical conclusion a negro could not be convicted except by negroes.

I am merely recognizing the edict from the White House that no person was to be barred from voting on the Bankhead bill on account of his race or color, which was another way of saying that negroes must be permitted

FRED EVE, 46, DIES OF LONG ILLNESS

Gas Official and Church Lay Leader Was Native of Augusta.

Fred Eve, 46, prominent gas company official, died yesterday morning at his residence at 60 Inman circle, N. E., following an illness of more than a year.

Mr. Eve was general commercial manager of the Atlanta Gas Light Company here and was widely known in Atlanta and in Augusta, Ga., the city of his birth.

The funeral will be held in August at 4 o'clock this afternoon and Dr. E. G. Mackay, pastor of the First Methodist church of Atlanta, of which Mr. Eve was a lay official, will officiate. Interment will be in the cemetery in Augusta. Brandon-Bond-Condore is in charge.

The grandson of General Clement A. His father was the late Judge William F. Eve, of Augusta, and his mother, the late Mrs. Ida Evans Eve, was formerly president of the Georgia Division of the United Daughters of the Confederacy.

He was educated at Richmond Academy, the Georgia Military Academy, Georgia Tech, and the University of Georgia, being a member of the Chi Phi fraternity at the latter school.

He had resided in Atlanta two years and held membership in the Rotary Club, the American and Southern Gas Association, and in the First Methodist church.

MacDonald, however, is supported by the foreign ministry because of indications he would take a firm hand toward the third reich and Hitler.

Debate in parliament next week on the program of national defense is expected to bring the issue to a head. Some government quarters expressed the belief the cabinet should take advantage of the jubilee enthusiasm by reforming its membership immediately with younger men going before the country in the general election.

Arthur Henderson, former labor foreign secretary, in a speech today to a national conference of women socialists predicted a general election earlier than many expect.

"Various government speakers," he said, "suggested as possible dates July, October and November and May of next year. Certain movements which are going on justify me in saying if they end favorably for the government an election will come suddenly, nearer the earlier than the latter date, I mentioned."

There is a strong feeling in political quarters the government will have to accept some of Lord George's "New Deal" proposals but not enough to bring him into the cabinet.

CUBA TO REMODEL SCHOOL SYSTEM, HALT RADICALISM

HAVANA, May 16.—(AP)—Plans for a brand-new educational system, based on the best features of systems in the United States, Switzerland and Belgium, were announced today by Dr. Leonardo Anaya Murillo, secretary of education.

Long a source of trouble, the school system in Cuba has been revamped several times in recent years, but no plan has been as thorough as that outlined by Dr. Anaya Murillo.

In announcing the plan, the secretary said a change in systems was "the most outstanding need in Cuba at the present time," and that he intended to "eliminate all the ills which political influences have wrought."

He made it plain that he intends to "do away with radicalism among students and restore normal conditions in schools."

BIG POWER IN CUBA IS GENERAL BATISTA

ment, a less intelligent and fearless man would have wrecked things. Instead, he has a hand on a railroad.

Conditions Better. The price of sugar, thanks to Roosevelt, is up. The beggars are gone from the streets. The streets are cleaned. The city looks brighter, freer and is. All Cuba wants to enjoy this law and order and go ahead.

And it so happens that the story of law and order and the man who makes the government go, is a mild-looking young man named Fulgencio Batista.

Fiction knows no story as strange as the one of Fulgencio Batista, the head of the new little Cuban army of 15,000 men.

He rules, or is the power behind the ruling government, a country which is as large as many European countries, such as Holland or Portugal.

The story goes back to a thatched hut in Oriente province near the town of Barahona. He was born there 35 years ago. He had a meager education at a Quaker mission school.

He worked, for a while, as a cane cutter for a few cents a day. And he was a soldier, and he learned the trade and learned it well. But there was not much in that business.

So one day he joined the army. He began to study shorthand and a Machado's officers began to like the industrious little man who was so polite and expert. He was not missing anything and destiny was preparing the man.

He became next court reporter for the army trials. And for five years he was that. Through his hands flowed all the army tactics of law and the administration of affairs.

Most of the officers in the Cuban army had been educated at America's West Point. And all they knew, and more, was being absorbed by this young sergeant. He had no plan. He wanted only to advance himself in his profession, which was the army.

He was married and had one child, a daughter. The pay was not much and so he eked out a living by teaching shorthand on the outside. But Fate was getting ready.

A great deal of his dealings were with five sergeants, top sergeants, representing the various companies. About September 1, 1933, Sergeant Batista learned that several of the young officers were going to revolt against the older officers who were holdovers from the much-hated Machado government which had been overthrown. He had a sudden idea.

Conspiracy Grew. Batista conferred quickly with his fellow sergeants. They talked with some privates. Within a few hours the conspiracy grew.

They asked some of the younger officers to throw in with them and when they refused, the Batista organization, suddenly finding itself with the loyalty of all the noncommissioned officers and privates, went to the officers and told them they were out.

It was just that simple. But Batista asked some of them to come back, saying they wanted only to be rid of the Machado officers. But the officers left, sneering at a bit at this sergeant, this clerk, who would try to manage an army.

But the men remained loyal. The little clerk went to work. He cannot go to sleep now before 6 o'clock in the morning. He must stay up all night because he got so in the habit of doing during those weeks and others that were to follow.

Within a few days the government of Manuel Cespedes was overthrown on the request of the top sergeant, who now was head of the army, and Grau San Martin was installed. He could have been president but he said, "I am a soldier, not a politician."

And then followed one of the most bizarre stories in all the history of Latin-American revolution. One Colonel Julio Sangulany, had been operated on for appendicitis by his son, one of Havana's physicians, and the son, because of the unrest in the city, moved his father to the National hotel. Now the National hotel is one of the finer hotels and commands now, as then, a splendid patronage.

It is an American hotel, with an American manager, one Will Taylor, whose devotion to duty is one of the great stories of the hotel business in this, or any other country.

The expelled officers began to come to the hotel to visit their former chief of staff. One day 125 of them arrived, having been refused a meeting place in the city.

The soldiers saw them and put a light guard about the city. The word got out in the city and soon all of the officers expelled, 500 of them, were in the hotel.

They were gentlemen. They did not take over the hotel. They registered and paid in advance, jesting with Manager Taylor about his unexpected guests. They did not expect to fight.

Possessed Rifles. But the officers, dressed in civilian clothes, were in possession of some 36 rifles. The soldiers cut off the telephones from the city. The building had its own lighting plant. The officers, including as they did many trained college men, included electrical engineers, and other skilled men. They began to conduct the hotel when the help left, fearing trouble.

The guard would let people in but not let them out.

They waited. And then late one afternoon they walked into the hotel 200 men, members of the A. R. U. secret society. They carried with them machine guns, rifles and boxes of ammunition. The bitterness and hate engendered by the Machado goverment had left scars and determined men.

"Come on out and let's fight," they said.

But the officers did not. They did not want bloodshed. They would not leave. Nor would they move out and fight. That night 2,000 men slept in the hotel, filling every available space, filling the lobby, the chairs and the floors. And the next day left the guards at the gates, letting them pass.

Manager Taylor stayed on. He listened to radio reports which denounced the hotel for harboring the men. He finally got word to ex-Sergeant Batista, explaining his situation. He had not asked the people in and he was not going to leave the property entrusted to his care.

Shooting began. The officers selected their 20 best marksmen. One group was waiting for a truck to return for them. Soldiers were games. They accounted for near 100 of the soldiers.

Meanwhile Batista, showing that good common sense which has made him an outstanding figure, had sent in passes for Taylor and his three faithful assistants. They were, said Batista, doing the proper thing and he understood their position exactly.

Firing Lasts 28 Days. For 28 days the sporadic shooting went on. Some artillery came into play and great holes were shot into the hotel.

The damage was about $200,000, but repairs were made and the hotel now is enjoying its deserved patronage.

On the day of October 2 there was a real bombardment with half the city watching and finally the men surrendered.

They were taken off in truckloads. One group was waiting for a truck to return for them. Soldiers were searching the house, with each side at a tremendous pitch of excitement.

A car, with curtains about the windows, drove up the drive and fired five shots. To this day it is not known if they were seeking to rescue the officers or fire on them. Soldiers, hearing the shots, rushed to the windows and began firing. Fourteen officers were killed before calm was restored.

Today many of the officers who were in that bombardment are serving their country in various government jobs. Some have returned to the army. Others have been given diplomatic posts. Only those who continued into revolutionary activities have been left out.

Batista was permitting this. He was beginning to show here that wisdom which began to change the minds of Cuba. That was his first big test. The next one was some weeks away.

(Note—In the next article the story of Fulgencio Batista is continued, showing how he has worked out law and order for Cuba out of a seemingly impossible situation.)

PATMANITES FREE BONUS MEASURE FOR CERTAIN VETO

nally was released by Senator Thomas, democrat, Oklahoma, leader of the Patman forces in the senate, with an understanding that the crucial test, on overriding the veto would not come until the middle of next week.

But in contrast to the obstructionist tactics he has been using for the past nine days to hold the bill before the senate, Thomas arranged for speeding the bill to the White House by getting authority for Vice President Garner to sign it after the senate adjourned.

The hotly disputed bill was rushed to the house, as soon as it was released by the senate and signed by Speaker Byrnes. But Vice President Garner had left the capitol, and his of-ice announced he would sign it tomorrow at 11 o'clock, assuring its transmittal to the White House by tomorrow night.

The statement by Early today was the first formal announcement from the White House that the president would veto the bill, though virtual assurance had been given before.

The White House secretary apparently was referring to published reports that Vice President Garner had urged the political wisdom of passing the bill over the president's veto, when he said:

"I will say as definitely as I can that the president is not interested in the bonus because of political reasons or political expediency. He will veto the bill passed by congress."

"In his message he will present as forceful an argument as he has and it is his earnest hope that congress will support the veto."

Deny Garner Favors Bill. Senate leaders denied the reports that Garner was advising enactment of the bill over the veto, but the canny vice president, in conformance with his established practice of keeping away from public issues, refused to comment.

Members of the bonus bloc in the senate were somewhat in conflict on their claims. Huey Long flatly claimed to "have the votes," but none of the other backers of the bill expressed such strong confidence.

Senator Borah, republican, Idaho, said the bill was gaining strength, but

BOHAR THREATENS DEADLOCK ON NRA

Senate Stirred by Lashing of Richberg, Who Hints Resignation.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—(AP)—A thinly-veiled threat of a legislative deadlock threatening NRA's existence was flung by Senator Bohar today at a fresh White House agreement to fight for a two-year extension of the recovery law.

On behalf of Senate NRA critics, the Idaho republican warned democratic leaders bluntly—though in an almost conversational tone—that he and other opponents of the law would not compromise the senate's plan for a 10-month extension of a close-clipped code rule of industry, but would battle for "precisely what we believe to be in the interests of the country."

Bohar spoke after Senator Clark, democrat, Missouri, another Blue Eagle foe, had assailed Donald R. Richberg's criticism of the senate's 10-month plan as "the most arrogant since the days of the Roman empire."

Clark lashed at Richberg as a "Mussolini" and asked "by what means has our Caesar grown so great?"

The new agreement between President Roosevelt and NRA's governing board earlier was outlined by Richberg on the White House steps. Designed to displace in the house the senate extension resolution, it embraced a two-year extension and a less-limited code rule.

Richberg May Quit.

Clark took the floor after giving notice he would attack Richberg for remarks made to NRA employees, telling them among other things, not to be worried about their jobs. The debate brought back to the senate a letter to Senator Barkley, democrat, Kentucky, had declared he was serving as NRA's chairman only temporarily and was anxious to get back to private law practice.

Barkley replied to Clark with a defense of Richberg, contending the speech in which he said the senate's action was "complete folly" was "in good taste" and "of philosophic nature." The Kentuckian had Richberg's speech read to the senate, together with a letter from the NRA head saying the address was "not directed in any way to the senate or any member of the house or senate."

NRA Chief Defended.

While Clark and Barkley were debating his activities, Richberg was called into an executive meeting with house ways and means committee democrats to explain the seven-point program agreed to by his group and the president earlier in the day.

Chairman Doughton, in announcing Richberg's appearance, defended his activities to newspapermen.

"We are just calling Mr. Richberg in for information," Doughton said. "Why anyone should accuse him of holding I can't see. Why a hall-bulldog should be raised because we are getting information—not instructions—from a man who is considering the law we are considering is more than I can see."

To Be Ready Soon.

Doughton said the committee would open hearings on the NRA program next week and would sit mornings, afternoons and possibly nights, to finish up and have the measure ready for the house the following week.

Even that program would leave only three weeks for enactment of the measure before the present law expires June 16.

Richberg outlined the White House program as follows:

1. Two-year extension.
2. A period of three to six months to revise existing codes.
3. Jurisdiction to be limited to businesses engaged in interstate commerce and those substantially affecting interstate commerce.
4. Provision for voluntary codes with adequate authority to impose limited codes governing minimum wages, maximum hours, prohibition of child labor and continuation of Section 7-A, the collective bargaining clause.

Anti-Trust Bar.

Bohar told the senate he did not criticize Richberg for lobbying, but was surprised at what he termed a "turn about" by the recovery head on the subject of price fixing. He said:

"Now you can remove dandruff— instantly. Fitch's Dandruff Remover Shampoo dissolves and washes away all dandruff with a single application— under a money-back guarantee. No after-rinse required. As good for blondes as brunettes. Try it— You'll like it!"

Nation-Wide Chain Grocers Hold Enthusiastic Meeting

Above is shown group at the dinner meeting of the Nation-Wide Stores Company held Wednesday night at Sterchi's. Standing, J. F. Jones, secretary of the Nation-Wide Stores of Georgia, with A. Lichtenstein, president of the Nation-Wide Stores of Georgia. Seated, left to right, L. E. Campbell, professor of accounting at Emory University; R. C. McConnell, chairman of the Atlanta Nation-Wide Store, and M. R. Brewster, professor of marketing at Emory University.

A large group of member grocers of the Nation-Wide Stores Company enthusiastically enjoyed a short college course in store management and a banquet held in Sterchi's fifth floor clubroom on Wednesday night.

About 200 strong, they were served food provided for the occasion by numerous nationally and locally known caterers and then for dessert partook of some excellent food for thought presented by two prominent members of the faculty of Emory University.

The modern trend of utilizing the brain trust in business proved to be a very happy selection, for the practical grocers present were in evident accord with the facts and theories presented to them by Professor L. E. Campbell and Professor M. R. Brewster.

Professor Brewster, who has made special studies of retail store merchandising, spoke first, developing the theme that quality, price and service are the trio, plus good management and co-operative effort that will provide profits for the members of the Nation-Wide Stores.

Mr. Campbell, professor of accounting at Emory University, was surprised at Richberg's opposition to the senate program in view of speeches he made last fall during the election campaign.

The senator said there was "a great deal in what the president said that a sudden termination of the law might be embarrassing."

But Richberg emphasized that he and other NRA critics had wanted to go further in clipping the Blue Eagle's wings and warned:

"If they asked us to recede, we will not advocate a compromise but precisely what we believe to be in the interests of the country."

"Rejection of price fixing is not only essential to NRA," Richberg added, "but to a sound economy and the restoration of purchasing power to the masses, and no one stated it more soundly than Mr. Richberg in his speech last night. If you allow a few corporations to fix prices you can never restore the purchasing power of the masses."

Clark contended that Richberg's summoning of NRA employees for the denunciation of the senate's action was "an amazing spectacle of an employee of the government calling other employees of the government to meeting to assail the senate for not giving them a two-year extension of their jobs."

He entitled the speech "Donald R. Richberg and his ambition to become a Mussolini in the United States."

Richberg's letter, which Barkley read, contended the address was "in good temper and good taste."

Textile Hearings Close in Capital

WASHINGTON, May 16.—(AP)—Tariff commission hearings on imports of cotton cloth closed today with the assertion by Charles A. Marshall, counsel for the Cotton Textile Institute, that statements by Japanese importers had "veered on the insolent."

As the tariff commission hearings were concluded, the textile control flared in the house, with the New England democratic house delegation arranging a conference for tomorrow with the president's cabinet textile committee, and Representative Martin, republican, Massachusetts, charging from the house floor that he had evidence the recent farmers' demonstration here was arranged by the farm administration.

Martin told the house he had been informed in a telegram from F. P. Lordan, chairman of the Houston and Galveston division of the Cotton Industries Employees' Association, that the farmers' demonstration in Washington was arranged by farm administration officials to "vindicate their shortsighted policies in the eyes of the nation."

Aware of Effect.

"The majority of farmers," Lordan wired, according to Martin's statement on the floor, "are aware of the permanent injury to agriculture and the national economy as a result of the AAA program, but are unable financially, or were not invited to come to Washington."

Martin quoted Lordan as saying the county agent at Galveston, representing the farmers' meeting, was a government employee.

HIGH SCHOOL MILITARY WILL PARADE TONIGHT

An exhibition of the military units of Atlanta high schools will be held at 8 o'clock tonight at Grant field.

Medals and awards will be presented to the most outstanding cadets of Boys' High and Tech High schools. A silent drill will be staged by a Tech High company, while the entire Boys' High regiment will execute the Botts manual. The exhibition will be concluded with a consolidated regimental review of the two schools.

Tulips were introduced into Europe from Turkey about 1544, and it was less than a century later that Dutch growers had the tulip craze.

Denies Sponsoring, Aiding Capital Trek; 'Paid Own Way,' He Says.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—(AP)—A blanket denial that the AAA promoted the march on Washington by farmers he said came "of their own volition" was made by Chester C. Davis today as Secretary Wallace lashed out at an unnamed "journalistic critic" of his ever-normal granary plans.

Davis, AAA administrator, wrote Senator Robinson, the democratic leader, that the 4,000 farmers who heard President Roosevelt assail "lies" about this agricultural program "paid their own way," and added:

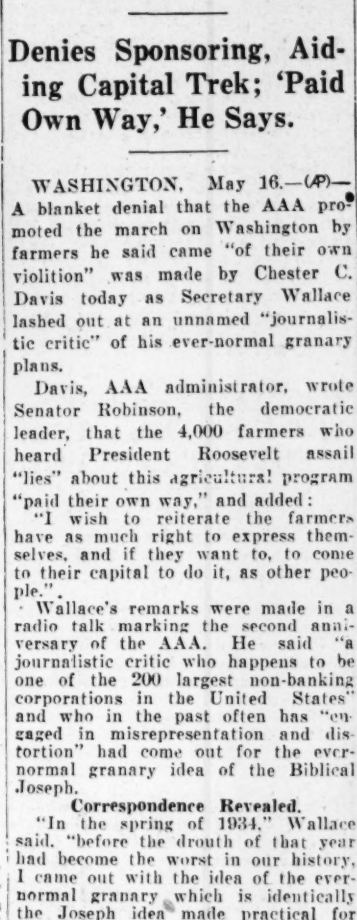

"I wish to reiterate the farmers have as much right to express themselves, and if they want to, to come to their capital to do it, as other people."

Wallace's remarks were made in a radio talk marking the second anniversary of the AAA. He said "a journalistic critic who happens to be one of the 200 largest non-banking corporations in the United States" and who in the past often has "engaged in misrepresentation and distortion" had come out for the ever-normal granary idea of the Biblical Joseph.

Correspondence Revealed.

"In the spring of 1934," Wallace said, "before the drought of that year had become the worst in our history, I came out with the idea of the ever-normal granary which is identical to the Joseph idea of the Bible. It would permit farmers with the help of the government to apply the surplus of fat years to the shortages of lean years, but unlike the farm board plan it would include effective production control whenever necessary."

Atlantans To Witness Graduation Of Daughters at Eastern Colleges

By Sally Forth.

SUNDAY will see the departure by motor of the Clarence Haverty family for Rydal, Pa., where they will witness the graduation of their daughter, Clare, at Ogonitz. The graduating exercises do not take place until May 28, but Mr. and Mrs. Haverty are planning to go early enough to participate in the preceding round of gay festivities, for they are most congenial with their lovely daughter and her youthful associates. In fact, petite Mrs. Haverty looks hardly older than a schoolgirl herself, and Clare finds her an ideal companion.

Another Atlanta belle whose beauty adorns senior ranks at Ogonitz is Anne Alston. So her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Phil Alston, plan to leave next week to join the Havertys and to be present for her graduation. Following the event, Mr. Alston and Mr. Haverty will return to Atlanta in the Haverty car.

But Mrs. Alston and Anne, Mrs. Haverty and Clare will continue to New York. Such an attractive foursome could not escape a round of social attention, and Sally finds herself wondering how they will sandwich in enough time to do the extensive shopping they have planned. You see, Anne must necessarily be in the throes of fitting a court costume, for she is to be presented to their Britannic majesties, King George and Queen Mary, at one of the June drawing rooms in London. Mrs. Alston will remain with her in New York until she sails on June 5 with Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Richardson and Louise Richardson for Europe. Louise, you remember, will also be presented at the English court.

Clare will doubtless be just as busy assembling a new summer wardrobe, for after New York, she and her mother will journey to Annapolis for June week. There they will be joined by Judy Beers and her mother, Mrs. H. W. Beers. Judy, as you know, will graduate at Gunston Hall in Washington, while Clare and Anne are receiving their diplomas at Ogonitz. Of course, Mr. and Mrs. Beers will be on hand for the auspicious occasion, as will Mrs. Jack Thiesen, whose daughter, Christine, is also a student at Gunston.

Can you imagine what a furore Judy and Clare will create at the smart dances which are an integral part of Annapolis graduation? And can you fancy better chaperons for June week than Mrs. Haverty and Mrs. Beers?

WHEN Nancy Keeler offered the services of her dancing classes in a benefit recital for the Girls' Circle for Tallulah Falls school, the selling of tickets was an important part of the preliminary preparations.

Talented pupils taught the art of terpsichore under the skillful guidance of Nancy were very young children. In fact, the majority were under 10 years of age. Therefore, the importance of selling tickets to the benefit rested lightly upon their shoulders. Nevertheless, the tickets had to be sold. When Nancy announced to her pupils that she would award a prize to the child disposing of the largest number, tickets began going like hot cakes.

It resulted in Rebecca Cowan being the "super salesgirl" of the classes, and she won the prize, a hand-carved dining room suite for her dollhouse. It is a constant reminder of the progressive spirit of Rebecca and her interest in the auspicious event.

The Tallulah Girls are thrilling with pride over Nancy and her dancers and over Nancy's wonderful gesture of service in the presentation of her pupils as her part of the extensive work being carried on by the Girls' Circle.

ATLANTANS are renewing their friendship with Virginia Chamberlain Frelich, who is spending several days here at the Biltmore. As Virginia Chamberlain, the visitor spent her girlhood here and belongs to prominent Georgia families. She is en route to Washington, D. C., from Miami, where she spent the winter with her sister, Ruth Chamberlain Peters. These sisters were considered among the most attractive young matrons wintering in Miami last season.

Mrs. Peters' home there is one of the most beautiful on Miami Beach. Her interest in Tallulah Falls school inspired Ruth Peters to open her magnificent home for the brilliant tea sponsored last March by Mrs. T. T. Stevens for benefit of the Georgia mountain school.

Virginia Frelich has also been an ardent supporter of Tallulah Falls for a number of years. Because of this interest, she was chosen chairman of the Tallulah Falls Circle in Miami organized by Mrs. Stevens, a former Atlantan and a trustee of the school. Virginia plans to visit the school when she leaves early next week by motor for Washington.

Sally can scarcely believe that Virginia's son, Morton, has reached graduation age. He will receive his diploma on May 25 from St. Alban's school in the national capital. His mother, who retains her youthful charm and gracious personality, will be the first to congratulate him after he receives his sheepskin.

HERE'S a break for the wall-flowers! There's a chain letter now going the rounds which suggests that you send a dame instead of a dime.

Another letter of the chain variety demands that you shoot the man at the head of the list. How would you like to receive one headed by your most detested rival—say, or your most dangerous political enemy?

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Terrell Depart On Wedding Trip After Ceremony

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Terrell are motoring to Chicago and St. Louis to spend their honeymoon. The bride traveled in a sheer dark blue crepe trimmed in white. Completing her becoming ensemble was a shirred cape of the same material, worn with hat and accessories to match. Her flowers were orchids.

Until her marriage on Thursday evening, Mrs. Terrell was Miss Barbara Prater, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Homer S. Prater. The ceremony was an impressive event taking place at the home of the bride's parents on Peachtree road. Father Ed ward P. McGrath, of the Sacred Heart church, performed the ceremony at 8:30 o'clock in the presence of a gathering of relatives, friends and out-town guests.

An improvised altar was artistically arranged in the living room before the fireplace, where the ceremony was performed. Forming an effective background was the banking of palms and ferns, and augmented by cathedral candelabra holding white-burning tapers.

Acting as groomsmen were Homer S. Prater Jr., brother of the bride, Charles Humber Jr., of Columbus, Ga., and Matt Harper. The bridesmaids were Misses Madeline Wrigley, Aileen Timmons and Frances North. Mrs. Kenton Higgins acted as matron of honor for her sister. All the attendants were gowned alike in beautiful models of champagne chiffon molded close to the figure. A becoming effect was introduced in the split skirt in front which revealed the flowing underslip of yellow chiffon. The yellow foundation was an attractive contrast to the champagne gowns. The skirts extended to form a long train. They all carried shower bouquets of Shasta daisies.

Lovely Bride.

The bride entered with her father, Homer S. Prater, by whom she was given in marriage and was met at the altar by the bridegroom and Jack Withers, who acted as best man. The bride, who is a tall, slender brunette, wore a beautiful white satin wedding gown fashioned princess style, which was exceptionally becoming to her type of beauty. The cowl neck was high in front and was caught together at the neckline in the back with three satin-covered buttons. The back was open to the waistline, which extended in a widening effect to form the long train.

The tight-fitting sleeves flared from the elbow in bell effect. Her tulle veil was worn cap-effect on her wavy black hair, and was fastened across the back of her head with a spray of orange blossoms. She wore a face veil which fell in misty effect over her shoulders and over the graceful train. Completing her bridal effect was a ruff of sweet peas and gardenias showered with lilies of the valley.

Reception at Home.
After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Prater were hosts at a reception honoring their daughter and Mr. Terrell. Forming the receiving line were the hosts, the bride and the bridegroom and Mrs. F. C. Terrell, mother of the bridegroom.

The bride's table was overlaid with a lace cloth and held as the center decoration a large bride's cake and

On either end were silver candelabra holding white, burning tapers. Mrs. Prater was handsomely gowned in white crepe made with a cowl neck with deep décolletage in the back studded with crystals. Her flowers were orchids. Mrs. F. C. Terrell, mother of the bridegroom, was beautifully gowned in black lace over flesh. Her flowers were orchids. Miss Suzanne Knox kept the bride's book.

Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Prater, of Gainesville, Ga.; Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Terrell, of Chattanooga, Tenn., and Charles Humber Jr., of Columbus, Ga. Upon their return from their wedding trip Mr. Terrell and his bride will make their home with Mr. and Mrs. Prater on Peachtree road, and will be popular additions to the younger married contingent.

Taking part will be Verdery Rosebusch Boyd, who aside from her dramatic ability, is an accomplished dancer and musician; Jean Farrell, Eleanor Rogers and Byrd Strickland are recognized as rising young thespians; Francis Bone and Margaret Morison handle their minor roles with ability; Paul Carpenter, Jr., director of the organization, plays one of the principal roles.

Mr. Carpenter is recognized as one of the most outstanding young leaders in dramatic circles and is known to be a playwright of considerable talent. Sterling Lanier, director of music at Oglethorpe University, plays his role with keen understanding. Herbert Johnson, member of the Atlanta school system, and Leonard Coker, known for his professional work in New York, are hilarious as the two old friends, Arnold Smith with Tom Ewing, as his stupid but interesting servant, will long be remembered for his character as the mischievous son.

The colorful costumes and setting will please the audience as well as the charming personality and professional acting of this young group. Atlanta audiences will recall the memorable presentations of "Arms and the Man," "The Pim Passes By" and "Outward Bound."

Crackers Lose Opening Game of Vol Series in Tenth, 5-4

HAVANA, Cuba, May 16.—(By Air Mail.)—There were 40,000 people packed about the capitol.

Up the tremendous flight of marble stairs, stretching to the first portico of this gold-domed building which cost $24,000,000, stretched a wide expanse of red carpet, looking like a regular, crimson river cascading down the steps.

People were jammed. And everywhere there were the rich uniforms of the navy, the brown of the army, the white of the sailors, the blue of the police.

Cuba was waiting for the first international "air-train," a plane towing two gliders across the ocean from Miami, Fla.

And Cuba was a bit apprehensive. The public peace which has been restored was at stake. The great crowd, jamming the streets about the capitol and stretching away in each direction for three blocks down the approaching streets, filling the roofs about the capitol, presented an opportunity.

Within the capitol, beneath the dome and before the towering bulk of the 100-foot tall statue of a Cuban girl standing with her sword and wearing a helmet, sat the president—gray-haired, kind-looking Carlos Menéndez. With him were his staff and immediately behind him stood Guillermo Belt, the 29-year-old mayor of Havana. Next to the president was his wife. On one chair in the row of receiving chairs sat Jefferson Caffery, the American ambassador.

The jam within the capitol was terrific. And it was hot and little air could enter.

Somehow there was no real tenseness about any trouble which could arise. There was some, but the confidence in Cuba was great. Somehow the thing for which they were waiting began to catch hold of the imagination.

A man in a plane had lifted two gliders into the air and they were that very minute nearing Havana. They were flying in a land plane and the two frail gliders and the gliders were going to cut loose over the capitol and glide to a landing, one on either side of the great stretch of steps.

As I said, the thing began to grip the imagination.

And that of the crowd. There was a roar, finally, and three dots could be seen. It looked as if they were three planes but it could be seen the last two rode higher.

They had done it then. But the real task was ahead. They circled, the plane and its two "box cars," and then suddenly they bobbed in the air and the plane shot away. The two planes began to glide. About them buzzed the plane like a mother bird watching two fledglings try their wings.

THE QUIET OF 40,000.

And then, suddenly, the 40,000 people were quiet. When 40,000 people suddenly become quiet, there is a void. It feels as if something has been yanked out of the air.

They were watching the gliders. They came in, into a wide street, historic Paseo de Martí, but one which had tall buildings on one side.

The ancient forts which had seen DeSoto arrive and which had seen the English conquerors of 1700 and the old Spanish armies and the slave trade; which had seen pirates and finally the war of 1898; the sinking of the Maine—well, they were seeing the first international air train.

The gliders came in, trembling a bit, but true. The first one swept in beside the big steps, dipped suddenly as if it were to nose down, and then flattened out and slid on its wooden sled to a landing.

And then came the other, repeating. They were in; the mother plane roared down low and the roar of her motor filled the air as the swelling cheer of 40,000 people broke and echoed off the ancient walls across the way.

The wind caught the flags of nations strung across the second balcony of the capitol and they seemed to flounce a greeting to the international train.

Soldiers cleared the way and out of the tiny gliders that had crossed the ocean, stepped two tired young men. The strain showed on their faces.

They were Jack O'Meara and Paul Du Pont, American boys. Soldiers greeted them and they began the ascent of the steps.

The richness of the scene, the two Americans in old flying coats with the brilliant uniforms got one, and I found myself

TIGERS FAVORED TO REPEAT WIN IN TRACK MEET

All But Torrance's Record Marks Are Expected To Fall.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., May 16.—(AP)—On the eve of the third annual South-eastern conference track and field meet, Louisiana State University's formidable array of talent led a prime favorite to repeat its triumph of the last two years.

Represented strongly in all events, the Tigers from Baton Rouge were expected to emerge victorious with points to spare, although keen competition loomed from Alabama, Tulane and Auburn.

More than 125 athletes and approximately 50 freshmen were scheduled to participate in the meet, with preliminaries arranged for tomorrow.

LARGEST SQUAD. Louisiana State will be represented by the largest squad from the 13 schools and its forces include such well-known names as Glenn (Slats) Hardin, the speed marvel, who holds the world's record of 50.6 for the 400-meter hurdles; Nathan (Buddy) Blair, star javelin thrower, and a classy relay quartet composed of Ted O'Neil, southern A. U. 300-meter champion; Clabo Roberts, Ted Black and Hardin.

Slats Hardin holds two present conference records, those of 46.8 for the 440-yard dash and the mark of 22.3 for the 220-yard low hurdles. It appears probable he may establish new marks in each of these events.

Herman Neussage, Tulane's speed king, who negotiated the 100 yards in 9.4, earlier this spring may hang up a new conference record for the century, at present held by Perrin Walker, of Georgia Tech, at 9.6.

NEW MARKS EXPECTED. Indications are that the established mark with the exception of three may be shattered. That trio of records are the one held by Jack Torrance, the 300-pound L. S. U. giant, who has completed his collegiate career, of 53 feet 6.12 inches in the shot put and 149 feet 1.2 inch in the discus, and the broad jump mark of 25 feet 6.24 inches by Ed Hamann of Georgia Tech, in 1928.

The number of athletes expected from each school in the varsity competition follows:

In Semi-Final

Here is Louis Trowbridge, Atlanta-born lightweight, who met Lou Terr, of St. Louis, in the 10-round semi-final of Promoter Hugh Martin's opening boxing show at the Atlanta theater tonight. Trowbridge has advanced rapidly in the fight game in Florida and makes his debut before his home town friends tonight.

MARTIN MAKES DEBUT TONIGHT

Hugh Martin, who made a big success of boxing for ten years down in Florida, will make his debut as an Atlanta promoter in attempting to revive the game here tonight when he stages his first show at the Atlanta theater, which he has rechristened the Southern Sports Club.

The theater, long used as a vaudeville house, has been overhauled by Martin at great expense to provide new seating facilities, including ring-side box seats. A modern ring with up-to-date equipment has been installed, and a new lighting and cooling system put in.

MARQUES VS. DUNN. Paul Marques, trim Spaniard from New York city, and the tenth ranking lightweight of the world, will meet Wilson Dunn, full-blooded Choctaw Indian, in the 10-round main event. Both boys have reputations of being good mixers, are young and aggressive.

The semi-final, also 10 rounds, pits Lou Terr, veteran St. Louis lightweight and a campaigner who has battled all the topnotchers, against Louis Trowbridge, an Atlanta boy who has made a great reputation in Florida.

The main prelim features Young Sullivan, Marianna, Fla., who has been fighting semi-finals down the state, and Weldon Newsum, of Marietta. These boys also are lightweights and the bout will be a six-rounder.

By terms of his contract, Ruth is sharing in team profits and it is estimated he will earn about $40,000 this season. He is financially independent, however.

Club Officials Are Surprised. BOSTON, May 16.—(UP)—Boston baseball club officials expressed surprise today at a New York dispatch quoting Babe Ruth as saying he was ready to quit. Fans and writers expressed surprise at Ruth's reported complaints of shabby treatment.

"If the Babe shook a few home runs on the western trip I think his attitude is justified," said Joe Fuchs, Braves president, said before leaving on a business trip to Washington. "Babe and I talked things over before he left for St. Louis."

"I told him that we did not expect him to play if he was not in condition to do so. His attitude was that he would fight his way back to good physical condition, and try to do himself justice."

"If Ruth's angle is that he intends to retire from the Braves it is all right to me," said Club Secretary Ed Cunningham. "He has not made a very happy start, but hereabouts he has not shown any great degree of discouragement. Rather, he has appeared to feel that the western trip will bring him better fortunes."

Since the first week of the regular season Ruth has been hounded by a stomach ailment, complicated at one stage by a sore throat. Writers have consistently pointed to his poor physical condition and not once has Ruth been jeered at Braves field.

Dawson, Duvall Tie in Tourney. KANSAS CITY, May 16.—(AP)—Johnny Dawson, of Chicago, semi-finalist in the British amateur of 1929, and Grable W. Duvall Jr., Kansas City, played together in a soaking rain, tied for low at 71, one over par, for the first 18 holes of the 72-hole medal play Heart of America golf tournament today.

Eighteen-hole scores included: Bert Harlow, St. Petersburg, Fla., 41-41-82.

Kentucky Elects Rupp Over Protest. LEXINGTON, Ky., May 16.—(AP)—The Lexington Leader says a majority of the University of Kentucky athletic council ignored Director of Athletics Chet Wynne's recommendations and by-laws of their own organization in re-electing Basketball Coach Adolph Rupp for two years.

"The council overrode Wynne," the newspaper said, "who is varsity football coach as well as director of athletics, when he employed Rupp after Wynne had refused to recommend him. By-laws of the University of Kentucky Athletic Association require the director of athletics recommendation before any person can be employed. (In the athletic department.)"

The Leader put forward Wynne's attitude "is determined by the opinion that Rupp is unco-operative, that he is far more concerned with progress in basketball than with the success of the entire athletic department."

Judy King's Horse Wins First Place. ATLANTA CITY, May 16.—(AP)—Two of Mrs. John Hay Whitney's grey hunters, the Grey Knight and the lady's hunters, triumphed over a star field of timber-toppers to win blue ribbons today in the fourth annual Atlanta City horse show.

The Grey Knight, 9-year-old gelding, was ridden into first place in the lady's hunters, any weight, class by Mrs. Whitney who later was in the saddle when Two Legions took the final event of the second day's riding session, the class for hunters of any weight.

A third member of Mrs. Whitney's great stable of grey, Kingfisher, finished third in the class won by the Grey Knight.

BAMBINO DENIES LATEST RUMOR HE IS THROUGH

"There's No Truth in New York Report," Says Ruth.

ST. LOUIS, May 16.—(AP)—Babe Ruth, the one-time "Sultan of Swat," tonight made emphatic denial that he intended terminating his baseball playing career at the end of the current road trip of the Boston Braves.

The 41-year-old veteran, reported in New York to have declared "I'm all washed up," appeared almost angered at circulation of word of his "retirement."

"I'm going to play here tomorrow and keep right on playing as long as I have anything left," he asserted. "There's not a word of truth in the New York story. I have a cold, but am feeling better and am in good shape."

Ruth's denial of the oft-repeated rumor he would quit the playing field, preferably in favor of big league managerial job, was not unexpected. The general impression in baseball circles is he is greatly disappointed at his inability to field and hit like he once did.

SOUGHT PILOT POST. Last February, after previously announcing he would quit the game if he did not succeed in fulfilling his ambitions to become a manager or executive, he left the New York Yankees and signed a playing contract with Boston.

He also became assistant manager and a vice president of the club, and he was promised he would become manager in 1936.

At Boston Judge Emil Fuchs, president of the Braves, professed today to know nothing of Ruth's retirement intention. Judge Fuchs said he believed the Bambino would complete his year as a player if he succeeded in regaining his playing form.

"But if it is true that he will quit, I, for one, shall be awfully sorry," Fuchs explained.

Today, upon arriving by train from New York, Ruth appeared to be in a genial but not a talkative mood. He was accompanied by his wife and occupied a stateroom on a different train than the one that brought the Braves here to open a series tomorrow with the St. Louis Cardinals.

RUTH'S EARNINGS. "Of course, I can't keep on playing ball forever," explained the player, who earned $842,000 in salary in the 14 years he was with the Yankees.

Ruth played his first major league ball with the Boston Red Sox beginning in 1916. He was signed as a pitcher, but because of his hitting ability was transferred to the outfield and first base. In 1919, the year before he was sent to New York, Ruth hit 29 home runs, an unequalled major league record.

Ruth's future is closely involved now with affairs of the Braves. Efforts of Fuchs to meet financial obligations, largely hinging on earnings of the club due to Ruth's presence in the lineup, might easily affect his status as a prospective manager.

By terms of his contract, Ruth is sharing in team profits and it is estimated he will earn about $40,000 this season. He is financially independent, however.

Club Officials Are Surprised. BOSTON, May 16.—(UP)—Boston baseball club officials expressed surprise today at a New York dispatch quoting Babe Ruth as saying he was ready to quit. Fans and writers expressed surprise at Ruth's reported complaints of shabby treatment.

"If the Babe shook a few home runs on the western trip I think his attitude is justified," said Joe Fuchs, Braves president, said before leaving on a business trip to Washington. "Babe and I talked things over before he left for St. Louis."

"I told him that we did not expect him to play if he was not in condition to do so. His attitude was that he would fight his way back to good physical condition, and try to do himself justice."

"If Ruth's angle is that he intends to retire from the Braves it is all right to me," said Club Secretary Ed Cunningham. "He has not made a very happy start, but hereabouts he has not shown any great degree of discouragement. Rather, he has appeared to feel that the western trip will bring him better fortunes."

Since the first week of the regular season Ruth has been hounded by a stomach ailment, complicated at one stage by a sore throat. Writers have consistently pointed to his poor physical condition and not once has Ruth been jeered at Braves field.

EARL, CUSCADEN LEAD SHOOTERS ON FIRST DAY

Jack Tway Breaks 100 Straight To Win Introductory Skeet Card.

By Jack Troy.

A couple of shooting stars, one Paul Earl, the gaunt shooting star from Starr, S. C., and Arthur Cuscaden, the "Hurricane" professional from Tampa, led the field in the opening day of the Georgia state trap championship at the Capitol Gun Club with 100-bird totals of 149.

Artie, distressed at missing a target, was still trying, at a late hour last night, to figure out how he did it. "Ah, an old bachelor," said Cus, "no it couldn't have been a date. Ah, guess I was simply counting mah money."

Paul Earle allowed as how he "peeped" at his first bird. Which in shooters' language simply means raising the head.

Since the first 50 16-yard targets presented the first half of the class championship, Paul Earle has a grand start of 50 straight. Jack Tway and Jop Pullin, the fine young shooter from McDonough, followed closely with 49.

PULLIN LEADS.
In the first half of the state singles race, 100 targets, Jop Pullin led with 98. Charles Tway, Clyde King, Benson Freeman and Jack Tway followed with scores of 96 each.

Paul Earle, ineligible for the state race, led the amateurs with 99, while Art Cuscaden headed the pros with a similar score. It was in the last event that Arthur looked up and lost out on a perfect score.

Nineteen trapshooters battled away on opening day and additional shooters are due in today. The introductory hundred of the annual trap championship followed the conclusion of the trap events.

And then it was that Jack Tway, defending Georgia state singles champion at the 16 yards, gave a record-breaking exhibition of his amazing versatility by winning the 100-target event with 100 straight.

It was the first time in an Atlanta shoot that a shooter had broken them all. And the event was presided over by the national skeet shooting association.

WONDERFUL SCORE.
The amazing part of it all was that Jack Tway had previously fired at 150 16-yard targets. He had an aggregate score of 146.

In between he was running the shoot. Then he stepped out in the short program and broke them all. And lots of fellows, all of them old 16-yard shooters, have vehemently declared that mixed shooting is ruinous.

Well, may be. But the fact remains that Jack Tway is still in the 16-yard race and he is champion of the opening day skeet program by virtue of his amazing performance.

Tom Cassels, once a pro, who regained his amateur standing, ran a 50-straight in the last half of the skeet event.

THE WAIT FOR THE PILOT.

They were seated inside. A Cuban officer takes me through the push and I manage to shake hands. They are a bit deaf from the roar of the motor which had been ahead of them for hours.

They grinned, looking somewhat startled, when I said, "From Atlanta—The Constitution," and they wanted to ask how it was a paper that far from home was there to greet them.

They gave credit to the plane's pilot, Elwood Kein, who had landed at Rancho Boyeros, some miles away. Du Pont is the brother of the American gliding champion, Richard Du Pont, and O'Meara fathered the idea of the flight.

So we waited. The crowd inside the capitol gazed at the president and the diplomats and high officials who sat waiting. The two Americans, drooping a bit from weariness, waiting, listening with a smile to the roars outside and the babble about them.

Finally there was a cheer outside and through the path came the pilot, Kein, of New York, escorted by soldiers.

He was sandy of hair and he wore an old sweater and he was bare-headed, and he, too, went marching in to be greeted with the applause of the crowd and to be formally greeted by the high officials of the government.

THE STAR-SPANGLED BANNER.

Outside police and soldiers began to clear the streets so that traffic, which had not moved along the Paseo de Marti for hours, might get started.

They began to rap their clubs against their own heels and against the curbing. The sound was a signal to move on. Not once was a man struck. The crowd moved on and within a half hour traffic was moving. It was a masterly job of work.

I stood with a Cuban newspaperman at the top of the steps. "Look at our people," he said. "They have been imposed upon by tyrants. They have known hunger and poverty, but do you know there was no plundering of stores or bakeries. Only a few terrorists managed to give us a bad name."

The crowd flowed on. Outside a band began to play. There was the Cuban anthem and thousands not yet gone stood attention. And then I had started down the steps when the first crashing notes came—"Oh, say, can you see by the dawn's early light."

And I came to attention, and stood there getting a great thrill from hearing the anthem played in another land by a foreign band. And I thought of what the two nations meant to each other and of the tie that binds them. And I looked at the two flags flying together. They looked good, there.

The speeches were beginning and so I walked down the red carpet and out into the streets.

DUKE IS HOST TO TRACKMEN

DURHAM, N. C., May 16.—(AP)—One hundred and forty-eight of the southeast's best track and field men were gathered here tonight for the Southern conference track and field championships tomorrow and Saturday at Duke University.

The thirteenth annual meet will have the largest entry list since the conference membership was cut to 10 schools and included are a number of men who hold records in various track and field events.

In spite of rain today, officials in charge predicted the track would be in good shape as it is thoroughly drained.

The defending champions of the University of North Carolina will present 25 men as they attempt to make their record three straight conference outdoor titles. The Tarheels also won the conference indoor meet and the state outdoor championship last year and this year.

On the eve of the event the odds seemed to point to either the North Carolina University team or that of Duke for the championship with Maryland, Clemson and Virginia ready to perhaps throw some wrenches in the pre-meet calculations of the Heels and Blue Devils.

Seven nationally-recognized performers held the entry list.

Big Milan Zori, discus-sailer extraordinary of North Carolina State College, and only competitor from his school, perhaps tops the sheet. He is aiming at breaking his own conference record of 151 feet 7 inches which he set last year.

Other top-notchers include Earl Widmeyer and Bill Guckerson, of Maryland; Grover Everett, of Virginia; and Ed West, of Duke.

MISS WETHERED WILL PLAY HERE

Miss Joyce Wethered, the greatest woman golfer in the world and one of the three players to be selected for a slow motion picture to be selected for will play in an exhibition June 18 on the East Lake course, it was announced Thursday.

In addition to Miss Wethered, the swings of Bobby Jones, retired amateur champion, and Harry Vardon, celebrated English amateur, who was off the fairway only once in three years of play, were photographed several years ago in the first move to help golfers throughout the country.

Other members of the exhibition foursome have not been selected but it is likely that Dorothy Kirby and Bobbie Jones will be two of them, with Charles Yates the fourth member, if he is in town at that time.

Miss Wethered has given up competitive golf and is starting a tour of the United States within the next few days and the Atlanta exhibition will be among the first.

She, along with Jones and Vardon, have long been rated the three best golfers the world has ever seen and the exhibition here will give Atlantans the unusual opportunity of seeing two of the three great stars in action in the same foursome.

TAMMIS WINS THIRD STRAIGHT; MCCARTHY BACK

Bill Dickey Leads 15-Hit Assault With Four Safe Blows.

By Edward J. Neil.

NEW YORK, May 16.—(AP)—The Yankees came home from the west to a chilly reception from both the weather and 5,000 fans. They were red-hot themselves, though, as the young Jollys, Vito Tamis, held the second-place Cleveland Indians helpless while the rest of the Yanks belted them around 10 to 0.

The victory provided a nice welcome for Manager Joe McCarthy, who returned to the Yankee bench after a siege of influenza which put him out of action May 15 just before the Yanks started their western trip. Heavily bundled up in a woolen vest and a wind-breaker, McCarthy resigned the direction of the club. Art Fletcher had been acting manager.

Willis Hudlin, Thorn Lee, Clint Brown all got into the Yankee club boys who've been struggling for base hits ever since the season started. Bill Dickey led the way with four, two of them doubles, another triple, in the 15-hit assault. Ben Chapman got a homer and a double.

Tony Lazzeri, Myril Hoag and Earle Combs a couple of hits each, as the Yanks began to look themselves once more.

It was young Tamis' third straight victory over the Indians, who had lost in a row he's beaten the Indians. He allowed seven hits, fanned four, gave no bases on balls, and had most of his trouble with the junior varsity Manager, Walter Johnson, who has been leaning on so heavily.

Big Ab Wright, stuck in right field, had a double and second on a bunt hitting, added a double and two singles to the homer and triple he got in Washington yesterday. Lou Berber, the young second baseman, everybody feared couldn't hit, got two singles.

Earl Averill got the rest of the Indian hits, a double and single. No one got beyond second on Tamis, as the youngster bourn down heavily to save his shutout every time the Indians threatened.

SARAZEN RATED AT SHORT ODDS TO WIN OPEN

"Double Eagle Kid" Quoted at Lowest Price Since Bobby Retired.

By Alan Gould.

NEW YORK, May 16.—(AP)—To the surprise of nobody, stocky Gene Sarazen, the "double eagle kid," is a prime favorite in the future books to regain the United States Open Golf championship this June at Oakmont.

Sarazen is "six, three, two and even," according to the prices posted today by Jack Doyle, veteran Broadway commissioner and a close follower of the golfing ways since Francis Ouimet licked Ted Ray and Harry Vardon at Brookline 22 years ago.

In other words a dollar will get you six, if you think Gene will whip the big international field on a course that is quite generally regarded as the Frankenstein of American links. Not to mention the fact that Sarazen himself has been the recipient of such a short price in an open tournament.

DUTIA SECOND.
The defending champion, Olin Dutra, is backed up by Blonde Craig Wood, runner-up to Sarazen in the Augusta national invitation event this spring, as second choice at 8 to 1 in the 190 starters 100 Oakmont and they represent the picked survivors of more than 1,100 fine golfers. Outside of those mentioned, there are such stars as Mac Smith—Willie MacFarlane—Horton Smith—Harry Cooper—Wiffy Cox—Victor Ghezzi—Johnny Revolta—Johnny Goodman—Mortie Dutt—Denny Shute—too many to mention here, including Sid Brooks, the South African champion, who, finished second in the British open a year ago.

Beating Sarazen.
Jack Doyle, knowing golf and the competitive side of sport, is afraid of Gene Sarazen.

Sarazen himself picks Johnny Revolta as his top choice, Johnny being straight from the tee and one of the best of all putters—a knack that will be badly needed on Oakmont's slippery, sloping greens.

But Doyle moves Revolta up to 20 to 1 division, which also includes Harry Cooper, Horton Smith and six or seven more.

Sarazen has been rated in front for several reasons, the main one being that, in addition to acknowledged skill, he is also a great competitor, and usually up there shooting at the top of the winning mark.

To this you can add the fact that he recently won the masters' tournament from a star field.

Doyle will admit that 6 to 1 in such a field is a thin price. But Sarazen got the big play last year at 7 to 1 at Merion, where he had not won the works—and that only by a stroke.

Better Odds.
Doyle rates Mac Smith, Tommy Armour, Willie MacFarlane and Walter Hagen in the 30 to 1 division.

Mac Smith is a great golfer still, but the hoodoo has been chasing him too long to make him an attractive betting figure. Yet at 30 to 1 he is something to consider. MacFarlane recently won the Pennsylvania open at Oakmont with 294, where they are now saying that 296 will be the winning mark.

MacFarlane is a fine, smart golfer and only Oakmont's length may be against him.

Tommy Armour won the last open held at Oakmont, with the price against him at that time—1927—being 15 to 1. In the last year or so, the Silver Fox has given more time and attention to teaching than to tournament play. If he is near his peak, Armour always has a chance.

This is small chance that any outsider will win over Oakmont's bunkered, test. But golf is the most uncertain of all competitive sports, and from a field of more than 100 entries, there should be at least 20—perhaps more—who are quite good enough to win.

To this list you can figure Sarazen, Dutra, Picard, Runyan, Revolta, Horton Smith, Mac Smith, Cooper, Wood, Laffoon (at 15 to 1), Ghezzi, MacFarlane, Armour, Nelson, Mangrum and Shute—no name only a partial list.

Sarazen, Dutra and Picard might run into serious trouble at any given moment. Eight years ago, Sarazen had three 74's, but an 80 suddenly exploded in his face as shots began to slip away. Considering every detail of golf—length, control and skill, as well as present playing form—Sarazen, Dutra and Picard should be close to the top.

The Babe's Amateur Status.
As most amateur rules and regulations are somewhat cockeyed to begin with, it is easy to see how Babe Didrikson stumbled into a barred wire entanglement along the front of amateur golf.

Yet as long as her golf activities have no professional connection and violate no amateur rules, there seems to be no logical reason why she shouldn't be allowed to mix and mingle with the amateur side.

There would be no reason at all for classing Babe Ruth as a professional golfer. Because he isn't. The position of the other Babe is just the same.

ASKING A FEW ASKS.
Why are there millions who feel in the throng
Why are so many waiting to put on the blast?

And so many feel, if a thing's any fun
It should be abolished—or shouldn't be done?

If a cove gets along—if he's part of the cast,
Why are so many waiting to put on the blast?

And why can so many—from gutter to throne—
Still manage your business—but never their own?

THE TOUGHEST ODDS.

Jack Doyle, the ablest betting commissioner in the country, one of the smartest and one of the fairest, with more than 30 years' experience to work on, is now facing the toughest handicapping of his career. It all involves the open golf championship of the United States, to be settled at Oakmont early in June—the strongest of all fields facing the hardest of all scoring courses.

Doyle has named Gene Sarazen as his favorite in the big book at 6 to 1 against. Olin Dutra, the open champion and the defending titleholder, is placed at 8 to 1. His next worry is tall, willowy Henry Picard, among the younger crowd, at 10 to 1.

Paul Runyan, P. G. A. and New York and South champion, is on even terms with Picard. Craig Wood, who finished in a dead heat with Gene Sarazen at the Augusta National until the play-off came—who they led the Met field at Baltusrol this week with two brilliant rounds—is set in at 15 to 1.

Consider the line-up. There will be more than 190 starters 100 Oakmont and they represent the picked survivors of more than 1,100 fine golfers. Outside of those mentioned, there are such stars as Mac Smith—Willie MacFarlane—Horton Smith—Harry Cooper—Wiffy Cox—Victor Ghezzi—Johnny Revolta—Johnny Goodman—Mortie Dutt—Denny Shute—too many to mention here, including Sid Brooks, the South African champion, who, finished second in the British open a year ago.

Beating Sarazen.
Jack Doyle, knowing golf and the competitive side of sport, is afraid of Gene Sarazen.

Sarazen himself picks Johnny Revolta as his top choice, Johnny being straight from the tee and one of the best of all putters—a knack that will be badly needed on Oakmont's slippery, sloping greens.

By G. A. PHILLIPS.

NEW YORK, May 16.—(UP)—Led by the so-called "bond boys" and scattered issues of a more or less speculative rating, the bond market enjoyed one of the best sessions of the year today.

While the upturn in the lower-priced groups was attributed largely to a revival of inflationary psychology, the prime investment bonds were particularly disturbed by this left turn in market thought. As a matter of fact, bonds in the higher brackets showed only small fractional changes at the close and United States government securities were not especially unsettled.

The second grade group took their cue from stocks which surged forward following rumors from Washington that, while the president would veto the Patman fiat money bill, some administration members would not be adverse to passage of the measure over the official disapproval of the chief executive. A statement was issued from the White House, however, to the effect that it was sincerely desired that the expected veto be sustained.

Helpful Factor. In some quarters it was felt that growing confidence in business and industrial recovery was also a helpful market factor. The rails, it was said, did not ignore the possibility of an entirely favorable presidential message to congress on the transportation situation.

Among the best of the carriers, up to 1 point and 4 points, were Great Northern 4-1 1/2s at 78, International Great Northern 5s at 78, Missouri Pacific 4s at 78, Nickel Plate 4-1 1/2s at 78, 1 1/2, M. & K. 4s at 78, and Atlantic Coast Line 4-1 1/2s at 78 3/4.

The industrials were not so buoyant, and most of the utilities lagged, but there were a few sharp advances in these divisions. Manati Sugar 7-1 1/2 per cent certificates got up 10 points to 39 and Radio-Keith 6s gained 7 7/8 to 40 7/8. Among others, a point or so higher were Portland General Electric 4-1 1/2s at 69 1/4, Paramount Public 5-1 1/2s at 88, Portland General Electric 4-1 1/2s at 69 1/4, and Warner Brothers 6s at 65.

Federal loans were considerably more active than in the previous session, but extreme price variations ranged from 4-3/4s up to 5-3/4s of a point down.

In the foreign department Polish obligations recovered a point or so. Italian bonds were still soft.

Today's trading in bond markets amounted to $16,720,000, par value, the largest day's turnover since March 11, last. The Associated Press rail average advanced .8 of a point.

BAPTISTS ELECT DR. J. R. SAMPEY

Macon Man Holds Post.
Dr. Ellis A. Fuller Declines Nomination.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., May 16.—(AP)—Dr. John R. Sampey, "builder of churches," today was elected to the presidency of the Southern Baptist convention.

Tall, erect despite his 71 years, an ardent fisherman, and an enthusiastic admirer of Robert E. Lee and Stonewall Jackson, Dr. Sampey's election this afternoon followed a celebration earlier in the day of his fiftieth anniversary as a teacher of the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary at Louisville, where he has served as president for six years.

Dr. Sampey was elected over Dr. Robert G. Lee, of Memphis, after Dr. L. R. Scarborough, of Fort Worth, Texas; Patt M. Neff, former Texas governor; F. F. Brown, of Knoxville, Tenn., and Dr. Ellis A. Fuller, of Atlanta, had asked that their names be withdrawn.

In asking that his name be withdrawn, Dr. Scarborough said:

"I have never desired the honor, I have prayed for a place to serve."

Dr. Frank Tripp, of St. Joseph, Mo., was elected first vice president. Dr. J. R. Hobbs, of Birmingham, was chosen second vice president. Secretary Hight C. Moore, Nashville, and J. Henry Burnett, of Macon, Ga., were re-elected unanimously.

The new president, who succeeded Dr. M. E. Dodd, of Shreveport, La., said he would be content with one year in the office.

Dr. Sampey grew up in Montgomery county, Ala., at the town of Ramer, 25 miles southeast of Montgomery, during the reconstruction period in the south. He was graduated from Howard College, then located at Marion, Ala., and went to the Theological school at Louisville 53 years ago as a pupil, becoming a teacher there three years later.

An admirer of Generals Lee and Jackson "as Christian gentlemen," Dr. Sampey's chief inspiration was Dr. John A. Broadus, a close friend of General Lee, whom General Lee once called to Washington College (now Washington & Lee) to preach a sermon.

A fisherman, Dr. Sampey likes to go to the Gulf coast for recreation. Fishing companions recognized his proficiency with line and pole by awarding him a certificate which now hangs in his office.

"Before receiving the diploma, I had to make a sizeable catch. There were other tests of this sort, and then questions to answer," Dr. Sampey said today. "One they asked me was, what was my recipe against profanity when I lost a fish."

"My answer was:

"A good heredity—a respectable family—and a good case of the Christian religion."

Dr. Sampey's ambition as president of the convention will be to continue "to develop people along missionary and educational lines." He has been for 40 years a member of what is now the educational committee of the International Sunday School Council, and for 28 years chairman of a council group preparing uniform Sunday school lessons for 10,000,000 persons.

"I'm dead set against lynchings," Dr. Sampey said, "and stand for law and order."

"I'm for national prohibition—and for world-wide prohibition. The weak must be protected, and the mothers and children, too. During national prohibition, the liquor dealers at least were driven to cover, and there was little evidence of drunkenness on the streets. Uncle Sam did, and could again, drive them to cover."

"I believe in law on the side of morality. Since repeal, there seems to be a loosening up. They have legalized betting at the racetrack in several states, where they still raid negro dice games and other gambling games. I believe all forms of gambling should be halted."

UNETHICAL LAWYERS TO FACE BAR ACTION

Co-operation of the Fulton County Bar Association in bringing about the disbarment of all unethical attorneys was announced yesterday by Judge A. J. Hartley, president of the recently organized body.

"The association will conduct a thorough investigation of any member of the bar in this county reported as practicing the profession in an unethical manner," Judge Hartley said. "This applying to members of the association and non-members. If the circumstances warrant, we will assist in the prosecution of the accused with the solicitor-general in any disbarment proceedings which may be brought."

Prosperity Is Here, Pine Group Asserts

NEW ORLEANS, May 16.—(AP)—Officials of the Southern Pine Association expressed the opinion today that the long-awaited revival of business for the lumber industry has set in.

They said this indication was given in successive large weekly gains in orders for southern pine as reflected by the weekly trade barometers of the association for the three weeks ending May 11.

During these weeks a new high record for the past six years was reported on average orders per unit. An increase of 33 per cent in orders was shown for the week ending April 27 over the preceding week; the week ending May 4 showed a gain of 13 per cent over the previous week, and the week of May 11 showed a 20 per cent increase over the preceding week and 105 per cent gain over the corresponding week of 1934.

Shipments also showed a good gain for the past three weeks while production declined slightly during the period. The association officials attributed the increased business to a revival of building and remodeling.
